

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

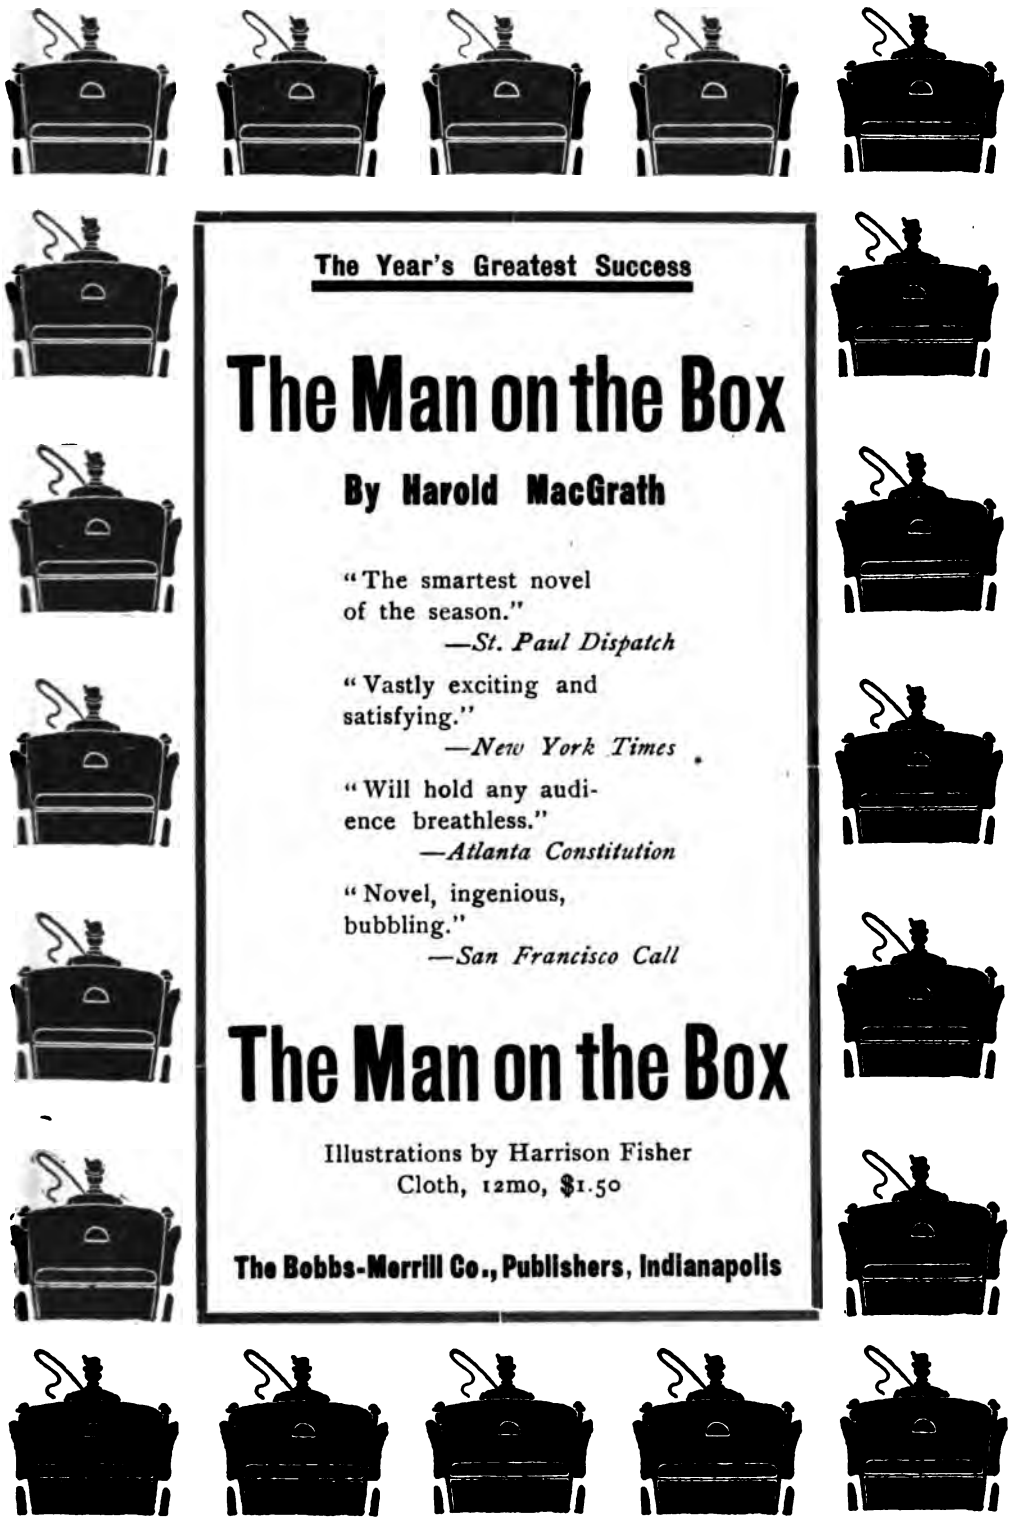
A SUDDEN SUCCESS

ALICE WINTER

"On a day not long ago THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY received a manuscript from an unknown writer, modestly signed A. A. Winter. Good stories arriving in the office are not uncommon, but this story was such an uncommonly good story that one after another the staff became enthusiastic about it. The touch of the unknown was so strong and the strength was so well sustained, the story was so powerfully built and well balanced that the editorial readers all performed the feminine feat of jumping to a conclusion. This conclusion was that the writer was a man, and the publishers received with pleasure the work of 'Mr. A. A. Winter'

"Then they discovered that the author of 'The Prize to the Hardy' was 'Mrs. A. A. Winter,' and the initials stood for Alice Ames. Mrs. Winter's father is one of the most distinguished clergymen of Boston. She herself, transplanted to the Great Northwest, 'sings New England, as she lights her fire in every prairie's midst.'



"The keen instincts of her New England inheritance have made her a close student of human nature and of social conditions, and the training of her early intellectual environment has developed her ability to express her ideas and sentiments in most telling form. Wholly without affectation or pretense, in the simplest, most direct manner, she tells her tale, yet with a force and certainty of style that are exceedingly effective. She creates an atmosphere of absolute reality about her characters that makes an impression of human vitality in her social drama that is seldom met with in fiction."—Philadelphia Telegraph

NOTES IN SEASON.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish on July 15 a new "Mrs. Jim" book, by Stephen Conrad, entitled "Mrs. Jim and Mrs. Jimmie," with illustrations by H. C. Edwards, reproduced in four colors.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have just ready "The Fountain of Youth, or, Personal Appearance and Personal Hygiene," by Dr. Grace Peckham Murray, with 134 illustrations from photographs taken under the personal supervision of the author. The book is mainly made up of chapters that have appeared in The Delineator.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish on July 5 "At the Sign of the Fox," the new novel by "Barbara," as the author of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife" has come to be known. Unlike her previous books, the present story will contain only one illustration—a colored frontispiece which is at once a portrait of the heroine and an emblematic and decorative suggestion of the book's underlying theme.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just brought out "The Jordan Valley and Petra," a handsomely illustrated work in two volumes by William Libbey and Franklin E. Hoskins; "Two Moods of a Man," by Horace G. Hutchinson, author of "A Friend of Nelson;" and "A Book of Golf and Golfers;" and a revised and enlarged edition of Inazo Nitobe's "Bushido, the Soul of Japan," with an introduction by William Elliott Griffis.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just ready a new novel by E. F. Benson of "Dodo" fame, entitled "The Image in the Sand," which is a love story dealing with the occult. Several scenes take place in an Egyptian town where an Englishman journeying with his daughter comes under the influence of mysterious phenomena. Later his daughter's love affairs become complicated and she also comes under the occult powers of one of her lovers. The story is dramatic and subtle showing how much Mr. Benson has advanced in his art since he charmed his public with "Dodo."

SMALL, MAYNARD & COMPANY, Boston, have just ready new popular editions of "Mr. Dooley in Peace and War," and "Mr. Dooley in the Hearts of His Countrymen," two of the specially popular works of Mr. Dooley, of which upward of 100,000 copies have already been sold. They will also put into popular cheap editions Emma Rayner's "Free to Serve," an American historical novel of the eighteenth century; and "Visiting the Sin," a tale of the Kentucky and Tennessee Mountains; "Harvard Episodes," by C. M. Flandrau, a novel of real life in the leading American university; and "The Autobiography of a Beggar," by I. K. Friedman, an irresistibly funny story of human nature in rags.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just brought out in their attractive Biographical edition of Stevenson's works "Island Nights' Entertainments," "The Wrecker," written in collaboration with Lloyd Osbourne; "An Inland Voyage," and "Familiar Studies of Men and Books." The stories have introductions by Mrs. Stevenson, giving a description of when, where and under what conditions the books were written. They have also just ready an "Elementary Algebra," by Walter R. Marsh, head master of the Pingry School at Elizabeth, N. J. The subject matter of the text follows the requirements of the College Entrance Examination Board both as to subjects treated as well as to those omitted, but special emphasis is placed upon the principles which are the tools of more advanced work in mathematics.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Banks, Mrs. Nancy Huston. The little hills. N. Y., Macmillan, 1905. c. 6+325 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "Oldfield" has written a story of the little hills of daily life that are at times so hard to climb. A girl full of ideals marries a dying clergyman, promising to take care of his helpless father and most uncompromising step-mother. The characters of the unnamed little American spot who criticize her actions are graphically described. She finds help and comfort from an unexpected source and all ends happily in a most unexpected manner.

Portrays the wretched results in many lives of a woman's deceit and vanity. Helen Brower marries a rich man when engaged to another to learn that her husband is the father of her lover. The knowledge of her duplicity kills her husband; but Helen nevertheless continues to play an underhanded part in the affairs of others until vengeance overtakes her. The mystery of a bank robbery runs through the book and of a life-long hatred.

Fitch, Michael. Echoes of the civil war as I hear them. N. Y., R: F. Fenno & Co., 1905. 4-368 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

A history of the service of the 21st Wisconsin Infantry in the Civil War, by its former Colonel. In addition to his picturesque sketches of various campaigns he offers reflections upon the Civil War under the title "Looking back forty years after" that are both interesting and enlightening. His estimates of "The four great Union Generals"—Grant, Thomas Sherman and Sheridan—throw new light upon these heroes. He devotes one chapter entirely to General George H. Thomas, whom he considers one of the greatest generals of the war.

The hero, a cultivated Englishman, is a strange psychological study. With high ideals and apparent integrity of character, he wrecks the lives of two women he loves. The first is a Spanish gypsy, to whom he is united by a ceremony that has no legal binding. Meeting in London a rich and brilliant American girl, he marries her, relentlessly deserting the first woman who believed herself his wife, and his little boy. Remorse takes hold of him after a while and he becomes an opium eater. Heart trouble ends his career suddenly the day after the gypsy dies. Long philosophical discussions between the hero and an author friend are a feature of the book.

During the Civil War a young Federal officer recovering from a wound was taken into the family of his father's old friend, a Tennessee judge whose sympathies were all with the Southern cause. The home life described is ideal. The grand-children and a widowed niece look after the judge's comfort. At last the house becomes the "storm centre" of a Union and Confederate battle. The consequences ending in a Court Martial trial of the hero are worked into a vivid tale.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 1, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

"SUPPLEMENTS" AND THE POST-OFFICE.

IT had become an abuse, almost amounting to a scandal, in the Post Office Department, that daily papers having political influence were permitted to mail with their Sunday issues as so-called "supplements" all sorts of "freak" prints and publications, while the Third Assistant Postmaster General was imposing upon postmasters, and particularly the post office at New York, the unwelcome and unnecessary detective work of interfering with the legitimate features of periodicals which for the sake of "greater convenience" to their readers, to use the words of the law, issued supplements cognate to the periodical. Happily this abuse was corrected by the order of April 15, though the Department made its peace with the offenders by providing that the law should not be applied to them until September 1, an act of fair courtesy though of doubtful legality.

Nothing is more disconcerting to the business man than uncertainty as to what he may or may not do under the law—which is one of the inconveniences of living in Russia. It is therefore well that the Third Assistant Postmaster General has undertaken to define what is positively permissible as a "supplement" in the Departmental interpretation of the law. As he truly states, it is difficult to lay down any rule which will avoid the necessity of specific interpretation in individual cases. But the publishing community is under obligation to the Department for this endeavor to define what will and what will not be permitted when the law is enforced, as thus interpreted, after September 1. According to this interpretation the several supplements of the modern Sunday edition of the daily newspaper would be subjected to the rate of eight cents a pound—which would be 100 per cent. or more above its price; but a loophole has been found by providing that papers which are issued in several sections are not to be interfered with, and this will probably permit the Sunday newspapers to do as they please.

There is, of course, no reason why if a newspaper may be issued in sections a weekly or monthly may not be issued in sections, and we fear that this distinction without a difference will not altogether clear the situation, if the Department is to keep on with its autocratic interference with legitimate periodicals honestly endeavoring in a businesslike way to give the subscriber his money's worth in a form which will be to his "greater convenience." A few years ago when THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY modified the form of its Monthly Record and made it cumulative, it was proposed for "greater convenience" to issue this material as a supplement or section to be folded in with the periodical, in accordance with the law. This matter had previously formed part of the periodical, though in somewhat less satisfactory shape, and the sole reason for publishing it as a supplement was "greater convenience." It was not "for advertising purposes," since it carried no advertising. But the Third Assistant Postmaster General promptly ruled this out of order, and we were forced, to the considerable inconvenience of our readers and to the detriment of the weekly issue, to "stab" this in with the other part of the number, and include the supplement in the pasted cover. This was a sufficiently absurd interpretation of the law, though not so absurd as the ridiculous fuss about long and short pages, colored inserts, etc., nor as the admission of freak supplements at the same time that these others were rejected.

The President has several times given assurances to visiting delegations that these abuses should have careful consideration from the Post Office Department, and he has now put at the head of that Department a Postmaster-General who by specific experience as well as general executive training is the one man capable of carrying through postal reforms in this as well as in other directions. The recent circular letters have of course been sent out with his approval, and they indicate a better disposition to construe and apply the law evenly than has hitherto been shown; but it is to be hoped that the whole subject may in due time have the attention of the Postmaster-General and result in an interpretation of the law with a liberality fairly possible within its provisions.

THE proposal to repeal the act which made Webster's International Dictionary the sole standard for purchase by Wisconsin schools has been defeated in the Senate. In connection with this a fierce attack has been made in Wisconsin papers upon Major A. J. Cheney as the representative in the "Third House" of the G. & C. Merriam Company.

THE PROGRESS OF BOOKTRADE REFORM IN GREAT BRITAIN.

THE annual meeting of the Associated Booksellers of Great Britain and Ireland was held on June 9, at the Royal Hotel in Edinburgh, under the shadow of the Scott monument and a few doors from the shop where the foundations of the great Blackwood firm were laid. The Council reported that the net rule had been successfully carried out, only a few defections having been reported. In dealing with the most difficult case the president, H. W. Keay, reported that at the conclusion of the interview the offender expressed his intention of joining the association. The one note of discontent in the Council's report was the inability of the association to induce the publishers of educational books to consider the introduction of net prices. Mr. Keay, in referring to this matter, said he found the educational book question a difficult matter. It appears that the educational trade is being driven more and more into the hands of a very few houses, and that the matter would need to be handled with great care.

It was reported that the total number of net books published during the last fiscal year was 4303, as against 3581 published during the preceding fiscal year, an increase of 722.

After the meeting, in the evening, the Edinburgh trade entertained its visitors at dinner in the Royal Hotel. There were present among the guests Lord Rosebery, Lord Provost, Sir Robert Cranston, Messrs. John Murray, J. M. Dent, T. A. Nelson, Dr. Robertson Nicoll and Henry Frowde. The American booktrade was represented by E. D. Brooks, of Minneapolis, Minn.

In proposing the toast "The Associated Booksellers." Mr. Dent dwelt upon the nobility of their craft, which, he maintained, ought to influence the literary thoughts of the age. To be a bookseller a man ought to be a lover of the books he sold. He expressed satisfaction that the discount system was fast disappearing from their midst, saying that the advance of that system seemed to him to be the only means by which they could earn a living wage.

Mr. Keay, in responding, said they would be powerless were it not for the publishers working side by side with them. Their work was much easier now than it had been. They had done the drudgery, and they were now, to a certain extent, reaping the fruits of their work. They believed with Mr. Dent that their calling was an honorable calling. They loved books, but they believed also that they could not live on air, and that they ought to have a fair profit. He welcomed the presence of Mr. Brooks, of Minneapolis. The English booksellers had watched with interest the progress of the net system on the other side of the Atlantic, and he believed their American brethren would wish them all success in the same movement. He hoped that booksellers and publishers would add to their respective associations, and that they would feel that, while they had a love of and an interest in their business, it was profitable all round.

"Literature" was proposed by John Murray, who confined his speech to what he called the more practical side of literature—the literature which was a means of livelihood. As a publisher he had always regarded himself as one of the Sarah Gamps of literature, and, although he had never written a book, he had edited, or assisted to edit, three hundred. In the present age there was probably more conscientious work done, and at the same time more slipshod work, than at any other period. But had it come to this that literature was to be judged by the number of copies that were sold immediately? Some years ago he had been called to task for saying that the only real test of literature was the test of time, but he defied any man to say which books of the present day will live. There was a Darwinian process about books, and the survival of the fittest was the truest, if not the only, test.

LORD ROSEBERY ON LITERATURE.

Lord Rosebery, in reply, said the toast of Literature was one of the most ridiculous and preposterous entrusted to mortal man. They would think it very hard to be called upon to return thanks for the toast of Homer, or Dante, or Voltaire after dinner, and yet those three illustrious names, one of whom ran to some eighty volumes, comprised, after all, a mere fraction of the toast of Literature. Therefore, it seemed to him that willingly or not, or voluntarily or not, they made a man a fool when they asked him to return thanks for Literature. He had no pretensions to know anything about literature. (Cries of "No.") It was quite true that he had spent a great deal more time than he ought to have done in booksellers' shops, but he observed a strange feature in the evening's performance. They had heard the views of publishers and booksellers, but no mention was made of the consumer. He did not pretend to be a critic, but knew when he liked a book, and he knew when he did not. but he did not care to give his reasons, and he did not always have any. He was not sure that anybody could return thanks for literature, but there was a practical sense embodied in the dinner that night in which literature became an extremely interesting and concrete question. He meant literature as a matter of commerce. A hundred years ago they had a good deal of literature of that kind. He was not sure that the first half of the nineteenth century did not represent the high-water mark of literature as a commercial undertaking, not perhaps from the publishers' point of view or the booksellers', but from the authors' point of view. In those days they used to produce poems in quarto, and Edinburgh was peculiarly fertile in poems in quarto. Scott poured forth poems in quarto, and the remuneration was not inferior in proportion to the size of the book. Messrs. Longmans gave the poet Moore £2000 for "Lallah Rookh," and he did not think the poem was even named. He was quite sure it was not written, and though the author frequently offered to show it to the publisher as it progressed, the publisher, with a wisdom which was, perhaps, greater than he knew, always declined to see it. That sum was worth eight or ten thousand to-day, and who in this audience would give to any bard, however illustrious, eight or ten thousand pounds for a poem he had never seen? That was an illustration of the time when publishers were too generous, when Southey was writing epics which he thought would go down to posterity with Homer and Virgil. He wondered how many people there that night had read Southey's epics, or even "Lallah Rookh." In the previous two centuries booksellers and publishers were somewhat more parsimonious. Referring to the prices paid for such masterpieces as the "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," "The Vicar of Wakefield" and "Paradise Lost," Lord Rosebery went on to say that, if he might speak plainly and brutally, it would be to the effect that booksellers and publishers had not always been very good judges of books. Yet, after all, there was something to be proud of in this trade. The influence of it was only in its infancy. He believed the truest contemporary test of literature was when a book began to sell second-hand and the highest test was when no copy of the first edition of a book was known to exist. As to second-hand literature, much was to be done by grouping and by guidance, and he believed that in that direction the future of book catalogues must take shape. In that way they were not merely vendors but educators, and that, after all, was the proper function of a bookseller. They in Edinburgh had always thought they were the centre and home of the trade, but men of letters now went far afield. Nevertheless, though, as in the case of one of the most illustrious of them, they might find their homes and their graves in places as distant as Samoa; there was no author bred under the shadow of Edinburgh, no publisher who had learned his business there, no printer who still worked there, who did not feel that he owed much of his success to that genius loci, that immemorial tradition, that splendid historical association which made Edinburgh what she was, made them happy in coming, and made him proud to welcome them.

Other addresses were made by Messrs. Robert MacLehose, Reginald Smith, Dr. Robertson Nicoll and the Lord Provost.

CONGRESS OF THE ASSOCIATION LITTERAIRE ET ARTISTIQUE.

THE twenty-seventh congress of the Association Litteraire et Artistique will be held at Liege, beginning September 18. Prominent on the programme is the discussion of various abuses of international copyright treaties.

A HISTORY OF PRINTING IN FRANCE.

HACHETTE & Co., of Paris, have just brought out under the general title of Histoire Economique de l'Imprimerie a volume entitled "L'Imprimerie sous l'Ancien Régime, 1439-1789," by Paul Mellottée. The work will be devoted exclusively to the development of the art of printing in France, little or no space being devoted to the subject of printing in other countries. In the volume just issued the author, after showing the brilliant light which the invention of Gutenberg brought into the domain of science and letters, and the social transformations which it introduced into civilization, goes very thoroughly into the economic branches of the subject—the hours of work, the night work, salaries, strikes, production of the printing offices, prices, workshops, presses, etc.—which are well described and well illustrated.

The work while chiefly intended for the practical printer, nevertheless will not be found dry reading by the general reader, especially the chapters on the exercise of royal authority over the production of books, the permissions to print and the censure of certain books, the police of books, the laws and regulations as regards apprentices, and other subjects which are illustrated by amusing anecdotes in a quaint and curious way. The author, M. Paul Mellottée, the son of the famous French printer, educated as a student of economics in the University of Paris, is peculiarly well fitted for the production of this work, which will be completed in three large octavo volumes. Though many books have been published in several languages on the subject of printing, M. Mellottée claims that there is no other work which presents the subject from the economic standpoint as he has done.

THE ENGLISH GOLDSMITHS HELP LITERATURE.

THE Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths, one of the oldest of the twelve great trade guilds of London, recently voted the sum of $25,000 toward the cost of producing the next volume of Murray's "New English Dictionary." The expense of making this work has been enormous, and is said to have been a heavy strain upon the resources of the Oxford University Press.

NO PLACE FOR FICTION.

A YEAR'S report of the books called for at the Imperial Library at Tokio shows that 166,677 volumes, or 21.6 per cent., related to mathematics, science and medicine; 153,711, or 20 per cent., to literature and language; theology and religion, 12,486, or 1.6 per cent.; while 18 per cent. of the applications were for books on history and geography. Fiction finds no place in the classified table of books in demand by readers in this Japanese library. Works on art, industries, engineering, military and naval science, figure prominently in the lists of additions made in recent years to the shelves of the library.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY WAR

CHICAGO, June 20, 1905.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The leading editorial in your issue of June 17 on "A Questioned Point of Copyright Law" has my attention.

I agree with you perfectly as to the necessity for a copyright law that will "clear the present one of its confusions and dubious points." It is a great misfortune that the present copyright act can be so "twisted" as to make it possible for any one to claim a right in an expired copyright, or permit another to take advantage of a technicality, and thus take from the owner of a copyright, without just compensation, what he had assumed was a piece of his property. But the law is the law, and it is not the province of those on either side of the question to read into or eliminate from that law any portion of it, and thus turn it to their advantage, nor is it the province of judges who are placed upon the bench for the purpose of interpreting the law to place constructions upon it, or render decisions that will not bear the scrutiny of higher courts.

I cannot, however, agree with you in the statement you make "that there can scarcely be two opinions . . . that no extra-territorial omission of an American copyright notice should affect an American copyright." G. & C. Merriam Co. published and copyrighted in the United States Webster's International Dictionary; they complied literally and strictly with every condition prerequisite to the acquirement of a valid copyright; two copies of the dictionary were filed in the office of the Librarian of Congress with the proper notice printed in the place required by law, in the books so filed, and then let us assume for the sake of argument that for some reason, satisfactory to themselves, they decided to manufacture Webster's International Dictionary in Germany or Canada, South Africa or elsewhere, wherever best suited their own convenience, and because of the manufacture of that book in foreign territory, they eliminated the copyright notice required by the United States statute from all copies manufactured, other than the two filed in Washington, wherein would those books, as far as their being books that could be, without the author's or publisher's consent, republished in the United States is concerned, differ from any other book published abroad without notice of American copyright? And, if they and not the other are entitled to protection, why, and how do you distinguish the protected one from that which is not? And, further, let us assume that there was no method of photographing printed matter and making plates therefrom, as there is at the present time, and, bearing in mind the fact that the United States copyright laws make it obligatory upon the owner of a copyright to notify the public of such ownership by inserting the required "notice in the several copies of every edition published," if another American publisher, finding copies of the dictionary without the required copyright notice, went to an expense of, say $250,000, in reprinting Webster's International Dictionary, would it be proper to deprive him of his investment by declaring that notwithstanding the fact that the Merriam Co. had not lived up to the law they should receive protection that the law does not give? I think there is little room for difference of opinion on this point.

Referring to your statement that "the new law should make clear that no extra-territorial omission of an American copyright notice should affect the American copyright," on the ground that "the contrary principle would tend to require that a book should be plastered over with a copyright notice of every nation in which copyright might be entered, and would seem to have no justification in necessity," I cannot agree with you. The copyright law places upon the owner of a copyright a very slight obligation, namely, that each copy of every edition of a book published shall exhibit on the title-page or the page immediately following a notice to the public that the book is protected by copyright, thus relieving the public of the burden of making an examination of the copyright office records to ascertain whether a copyright exists upon that particular publication. It is not an onerous condition to require that that notice shall appear in every book published, nor would it be onerous to require a like notice of copyright for every country in which the book is copyrighted. The English law does not require the insertion of a copyright notice "Entered at Stationers' Hall," etc. However, G. & C. Merriam Co. printed in their American edition of Webster's "High School Dictionary" a notice of entry of copyright in Great Britain, and where one voluntarily inserts a notice of copyright that is not required under the statutes of either this country or Great Britain, a statutory requirement to that effect cannot be considered a burden.

As to the legality of the photographic reprint of Webster's "Brief International Dictionary," that point will be settled in court. As to the morality of it, and your statement that "it is a flat case of piracy, which takes us back to the old days before 1891, when English novels were pirated galore," it seems proper to state that the publication of that book financed by various publishers whose customers have been put to expense and annoyed by the Merriam Co.'s tactics, is an act of reprisal, nothing more or less. It is, if you please, the act of one set of "pirates" taking a step that will prevent another from sinking their ship; neither may be entitled to much consideration, but the aggressor is entitled to less than he who attempts to defend himself when unjustly assailed, and in that position I, as one of the publishers above mentioned, unfortunately find myself.

G. & C. Merriam Co. were notified by me, first through a common friend, later, on two occasions, by registered letters, of the defect in their copyrights on Webster's "High School and Webster's International Dictionary." I told them what I knew, and begged them not to make it necessary for me to make public the facts in my possession. The olive branch, however, in their hands, turned to a poker, and was handed back to me hot end first. As they chose to reject the olive branch and treat my act of common decency in so supercilious a manner, it is our duty to ourselves to do anything and everything we can to prevent further encroachments upon our rights; and the publication of Webster's "Brief International Dictionary," which is merely preliminary to the photographic reprint of Webster's International Dictionary, has been forced upon us by conditions which we did not make, did not seek, and attempted to adjust in a manner satisfactory to the Merriam Co. and ourselves.

An exceedingly happy result of the copyright conference and of the proposed codification of the copyright law would be to have some of the so-called piratical publishers in the United States suggest means whereby copyrights would be as secure as titles to real estate. My acquaintance with the gentlemen who are engaged in the publication of so-called piratical editions leads me to believe that it is their desire to have the law so written that there can be no possible misconstruction of it. They do not care how "tight" it is made, in fact, they prefer a law that will be unquestioned in its phraseology as well as in its application. A very good place to get information an any given subject is in the house of the so-called opponents, and it would be well if publishers of non-copyright books were consulted by the gentlemen who are endeavoring to have a new copyright law passed, because much information could be given by them that would be mutually advantageous.

Yours very truly,
GEO. W. OGILVIE.

WHY ARE CYCLOPAEDIAS NOT HANDLED BY THE BOOKTRADE?

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Some time ago I called your attention to what seemed to me a rather remarkable fact, viz.: While the sales of cyclopædias in this country evidently aggregate millions of dollars a year, practically none of the business goes through the hands of booksellers.

I asked for explanations; I have seen none.

"It was not always thus," as I am reminded by a recent letter from Mr. Ingham, who writes me from "the wilds of Arkansas," ordering a set of my latest cyclopædia, and pleasantly introducing me also to some of his neighbors, who have likewise ordered. In 1880 and '81 Mr. Ingham was, as you will remember, head of the leading book house of Cleveland, O., Ingham, Clark & Co. He reminded me of the fact that his house sold some hundred and fifty sets of my "Library of Universal Knowledge," later known as "The International Cyclopædia."

My first business experience after a little bit as "train boy" and "street peddler," was in a "country bookstore," and I have always believed in them, and I believe it is entirely possible to make them the medium of successful sale of the right kind of cyclopædia.

Is not the question one worthy of discussion among booksellers?

Yours verv truly,
JOHN B. ALDEN.

NEW YORK, June 20, 1905.

OBITUARY NOTES.

EDWARD PAYSON BOONE, for some time in the old book business in New York City, died at his home in Allston, Mass., on May 30. Mr. Boone was born in 1838 in Meriden. Conn., and was the son of William C. and Louisa Hanks Boone of the Abraham Lincoln stock. Mr. Boone when a young man went abroad to study painting, but ill health obliged him to abandon art, and he returned to take a position in his father's firm, Boone, Frost & Co., Boston. Always a lover and collector of books, he established himself in the book business on Nassau Street, New York City, making a specialty of pamphlets. In 1885 he gave up his bookstore and entered the insurance business, continuing, however, to supply his old customers with such books and pamphlets as were in his line. In fact, up to within a short time before his death, he kept in touch with the book world of which he was so fond and in which he always took a deep interest.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DR. S. WEIR MITCHELL denies the authorship of "The House of Cards," a recent story of Philadelphia life, which had been attributed to him by several of the leading papers. The book has also been attributed to another distinguished Philadelphian, Owen Wister.

PAUL LAURENCE DUNBAR, the well-known negro poet, is just recovering from a long and severe illness, which has prevented him from doing much work. He is now able to correct the proofs of his new volume of poems, "Howdy, Honey, Howdy," which will be published in the fall by Dodd, Mead & Company.

J. E. C. BODLEY, the author of a notable work on France, has been prevented by a long illness from finishing the second series of that work. He is now recovering and will soon take up again the new volumes dealing with religious questions in the great republic —a subject which is just now interesting in many directions.

MRS. DANIEL LOTHROP, (Margaret Sidney,) sails this week on the Teutonic for a year abroad. She has corrected the proofs for a new book to be brought out in the autumn by the Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, and has perfected plans for several important literary undertakings to be completed on the other side. She is to be accompanied by her daughter, Miss Margaret Lothrop, of the class just graduated from Smith College.

In view of the cosmopolitan set of characters in "The Venus of Cadiz," published by Henry Holt & Co., it may be of interest to note that the author, "Richard Fisguill," (Professor Richard H. Wilson, of the University of Virginia,) has been a great globe trotter, and speaks a dozen languages fluently. He lived ten years in Europe, making his home in France for a number of them, and married a Parisienne. France got a great hold upon him, French is the language of his family, and all the appointments of his home at the university are said to be in the French style.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

A story by Kipling is promised in the August Century, entitled "An Habitation Enforced." It is a tale, it is said, of American people and English life.

The series of articles entitled "The Railroads and the Square Deal" which were to have been inaugurated by Rowland Thomas in the July number of the World's Work will not begin until the August number, which will be a special Northwest number.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF NEWSDEALERS, BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS.

The annual convention of the National Association of Newsdealers, Booksellers and Stationers will be held August 27 to 29, at Wilkesbarre, Pa. A number of topics have been prepared for discussion, among which the more important are the fifteen cent price of magazines; the return privilege with a larger margin of profit; paying freight for periodicals furnished by the news companies; second-class mail privileges as they affect the newsdealer; the "subscription feature," and compelling publishers to recognize a dealer and to fill his order for as many copies as a dealer may wish to have, providing the dealer is willing to subscribe for same and pays for them in advance.

Dealers not members of the National Association are cordially invited to attend, and those desiring to become members of the National Association are requested to write to the National Secretary, M. E. Golde, 1017 Sixth Avenue, New York City.

THE STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION OF NEW YORK.

The Stationers' Association of New York was incorporated on the evening of June 21 at the rooms of the Typothetæ, 320 Broadway, New York City, twenty-three firms being represented. Eighty-five firms have applied for membership. The following officers were elected: President, T. L. C. Gerry; first vice-president, Eben Storer; second vice-president, W. H. Hebert; treasurer, A. C. Bainbridge; secretary, Andrew Geyer; assistant secretary, H. A. Gage.

The directors are: Theodore L. C. Gerry, Andrew Geyer, Edward V. Brokaw, John Brewer, George W. Lane, Eben Storer, William H. Hebert, Arthur C. Bainbridge, Harry R. Elliott, William W. J. Warren, James M. Dewar, William Allen, William C. Bardenheuer, William C. Popper, Frank D. Waterman.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

Catalogues of New and Second-Hand Books.—Francis Edwards, 83 High St., London, W., Books on art, illustrated books, collections of portraits, etc. (No. 279, 1032 titles.)—Henry Gray, Goldsmith's Estate, East Acton, London, W., Americana and Colonniana, including maps, views, etc. (Foreign ser., No. 1, 32 p. 12°.)—Bernard Quaritch, 15 Piccadilly, London, Eng., Mss. early printed books, books on Africa, America, natural and physical sciences, etc., Bibles, and theology, etc. (No. 240, 317 titles, 1s.)—*George D. Staatswissenschaft, die Sociale Frage. (No. 258, 1526 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

The American News Company have just added to their attractive Library of Popular Fiction "Philip Winwood," the successful novel by Robert Neilson Stephens.

Brentano's have purchased the stock, plates and copyrights of the Scott-Thaw Company, of New York, and will at once supply trade orders for these books.

P. J. Kenedy & Sons have just ready "Reaping the Whirlwind," a story of to-day by Christine Faber, in which she shows how well she knows girlish weaknesses and peculiarities.

Funk & Wagnalls Company will publish shortly a manual on "The Preparation of Manuscripts for the Printer," by Frank H. Vizetelly, associate editor of the "Standard Dictionary."

John Lane Company, (The Bodley Head,) has deferred the publication of the two-volume edition of William Watson's poems, with an introduction by J. A. Spender, until September next.

Jennings & Graham, (Methodist Book Concern,) Chicago, have just issued "A Fleece of Gold," by Charles Stewart Given, giving five lessons in ethics and right living culled from the old mythological story of Jason and the golden fleece.

S. C. Coombes, South San Francisco, Cal., again calls attention to his book on "Frog Culture," the only known work on the cultivation and uses of the common frog, telling how to breed, how to feed and how to protect it from its numerous enemies.

ERNEST A. FINK, 509 East Eighty-eighth Street, New York, has published a comedy in one act by Lilian Pleasant, entitled "Their Godfather from Paris," in which true lovers come into a fine inheritance after jealous friends have tried their best to wreck their happiness.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have issued a sheet of music entitled "The Lay of the Golfer" and "The Long, Long Drivers," consisting of the songs from Frederick Upham Adams's humorous story, "John Henry Smith." The verses are set to music by George J. Wetzel, and there is a cover illustration by A. B. Frost.

THE Manzsche Hof-Verlags-u. Universitäts-Buchhandlung of Vienna has just brought out a comprehensive commentary on the Austrian copyright laws, under the title of "Erläuterungen zum österreichischen Urheberrechtsgesetz vom 26. Dezember 1895," written by Dr. Jakob Altschul and Gottlieb Ferdinand Altschul.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish at once "The Little Puritan Cavalier," by Edith Robinson, the scene of which is laid in old Boston, just before Cromwell's accession to power. They will publish in the fall Robert Nielson Stephens's new story, "The Flight of Georgiana," a story of eighteenth century life in England during the period of the Jacobite uprisings.

C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY, Boston, will publish in the fall a story entitled "Ande Trembath," by Matt. Stan. Kemp, the author of "Boss Tom." The author is the Rev. Matthew Stanley Kemp, pastor of the Alpha Lutheran Church, in Turtle Creek, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburg. They have also in preparation a story entitled "The Baronet Rag Picker," by Charles S. Coom.

WRIGHT & POTTER PRINTING COMPANY, Boston, have printed by order of the Governor of Massachusetts and Council a full description of the erecting and dedicating of the equestrian statute of Major General Joseph Hooker, one of the bravest soldiers of the Civil War, which is edited by Francis Hurtubis, Jr., private secretary to the Governor. A good photograph of the statue forms the frontispiece.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready the sixth volume of their American Nation series, entitled "Provincial America," by Professor Evarts B. Greene, of the University of Illinois. The period covered is from 1690 to 1740. They will bring out shortly a new edition of a charming little volume of verse that has been out of print for some time—"Lyrics," by Cora Fabbri; also, a reprint of their cheaper edition of "Lorna Doone."

A. S. BARNES & Co. have in press "In the Days of Milton," a picture of his life and times, by Tudor Jenks, which will be brought out in the Lives of Great Writers series, uniform with Mr. Jenks's "Chaucer" and "Shakespeare," issued in the same series; also, a popular book describing the larger features of our national life, entitled "Uncle Sam and His Children," by the Rev. Judson Shaw, until recently Field Secretary of the Young Citizens' League.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish within a few weeks Maurice Hewlett's new novel, "The Fool Errant," which is said to be more in the manner of "The Forest Lovers" than of "The Queen's Quair." They will also publish next month "Memoirs of an American Citizen," a new novel by Robert Herrick, the author of "The Common Lot," the action of which is said to centre in Chicago, shifting to other large American cities. The volume will have fifty drawings by F. B. Masters.

CUPPLES & LEON report that the first edition of the "Students' New Century Dictionary" has been sold, and that they are now printing a very large second edition, of which a good part has been contracted for. V. W. Cupples, the senior member of the firm, has left for Europe, where he expects to complete arrangements with well-known English publishers to represent them as American agents. Mr. Cupples also intends to make arrangements for an English edition of Cupples & Leon's publications.

JOHN C. WINSTON Co. have just issued "The Russian Jew in the United States," planned and edited by Charles S. Bernheimer, which is a valuable contribution to the subject of immigration to the United States. It deals with the entire social life of the Russian Jews, chiefly those of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, describing their economic position and progress, their religious and other characteristics. They have also just ready "The Thistles of Mount Cedar," by Ursula Tannenforst, a tale of school life for healthy, normal girls.

THE CENTURY Co. have added to their American State Series "Territories and Dependencies of the United States, Their Government and Administration," by William Franklin Willoughby, treasurer of Porto Rico, which treats the large subject chiefly in a descriptive way, giving an account of the policy pursued in granting these new territories political rights, in determining their relations to the United States and in organizing forms of government for them; also, "The American Judiciary," by Simeon E. Baldwin, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Errors of Connecticut and Professor of Constitutional Law in Yale University.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just brought out two new volumes of the Langham Art Series—"Rome as an Art City," by Albert Zocher, author of "Vienna as an Art City," in the same series, and "Italian Architecture," by J. Wood Brown. These attractive little books are bound in limp leather and richly illustrated. They have also just published a new volume in the World's Epoch Makers series, entitled "Socrates," by the Rev. J. T. Forbes; and a new edition of Major J. E. Pilcher's "First Aid in Illness and Injury," containing thirty-four pages of new matter and over forty-five new illustrations, bringing the book up to date in respect to the new hospital regulations in the regular army.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. issue this week the fifth edition of James Martineau's "The Seat of Authority in Religion," including the prefaces to the first and third edition; "The Ceremonies of the Mass," by the Rev. Dr. William McGarvey, rector of St. Elisabeth's Church, Philadelphia, who treats of the low Mass, and the Rev. Charles P. A. Burnett, curate of St. Ignatius Church, New York City, who treats of the high Mass as celebrated in the "advanced" Protestant Episcopal churches in the United States; "The Westminster Confession and the Thirty-nine Articles of the Church of England: the legal, moral and religious aspects of subscription to them," by James Donaldson, principal of the University of St. Andrews, Scotland; "A Geographical Reader for the Transvaal;" and a story of Irish life by Canon P. A. Sheehan, entitled "Glenanaar."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out a volume of "Practical Hints on Painting, Composition, Landscape and Etching," by Henry F. W. Ganz. The volume deals with method in painting, composition, portrait and landscape painting, drawing from life, illustrated by the author; "Psychiatry," by Dr. Stewart Paton, Associate in Psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University, etc., an illustrated work written entirely from a standpoint of treating mental diseases in their incipiency, the more interesting portion of the volume being devoted to a newer conception of the so-called problem of the will and the question of individual responsibility; "Steam Boilers, Their History and Development," by H. H. P. Powles, who gives an account of the earliest known examples of steam generators down to the most modern steam boilers, with descriptions and illustrations of all forms of boilers, showing how in the course of development certain types have become persistent, etc.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will bring out during the fall a novel entitled "A Motor Car Divorce," by Louise Closser Hale—the actress, "Louise Closser," who made such a "hit" in "Candida." They story will be illustrated by her husband, Walter Hale. They have also in preparation a volume entitled "To Europe," by Miss H. A. Guerber, the author of "Legends of Switzerland," etc., which is not a guide book, but a volume from which to learn how to prepare for a trip to Europe, with routes, lists of books on art, travel, etc.; "Patty in the City," a new book by Carolyn Wells, which will be looked forward to with pleasure by girl readers; also, a new edition of the late Paul Leicester Ford's "His Version of It," the little love tale in which is told the story of a man and a girl through the conversation of the horses. The book will be illustrated with full-page pictures in color and marginal decorations by Henry Hutt. They have been obliged to put off the publication of Lucas Malet's new novel, until next spring, on account of the illness of the author.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD COMPANY will publish on August 15 Harry Leon Wilson's new novel, "The Boss of Little Arcady," which will be illustrated by Rose Cecil O'Neill—the famous "O'Neill" of Puck. They have in preparation a reprint of "The Only True Mother Goose," published by Munroe & Francis, of Boston, in 1833, with a twelve-page introduction by the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, who regards this reprint as a matter of great interest to the public and who has given his happiest efforts to the Introduction. They have also under way "Chip, a Waif of the Wilderness," by Charles Clark Munn, author of "Uncle Terry," which deals with many of the characters introduced in his last book, "The Hermit," and is regarded by Mr. Munn and his most intimate critics as his strongest and ablest work. The book will be carefully illustrated in keeping with the scenes of the narrative, which are in the deep Maine woods, far from the beaten track, which Mr. Munn knows better than any other author, and in two small villages near the coast.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, (American Branch,) have put on the market a most valuable work in an Italian "Concordanza Delle Opere Italiane in Prosa e Del Canzoniere Di Dante Alighieri," published by the Dante Society of Cambridge, Mass., edited by E. S. Sheldon and A. C. White. The book is dedicated to Charles Eliot Norton. This house also has ready the second impression of "Author and Printer," a guide for authors, editors, printers, correctors of the press, compositors and typists, with full list of abbreviations, by F. Howard Collins, assisted by many authors, editors and other experts; the seventh edition of Part 3 of "A Handbook of the Ordinary Dialect of the Tamil Language," by the Rev. Dr. G. U. Pope, of Balliol College, Oxford, which is devoted to "A Compendious Tamil-English Dictionary;" "The Dream of the Rood," an old English poem attributed to Cynewulf, edited by Albert S. Cook, of Yale University; and a second series of Short German Plays, edited by E. S. Buchheim, with vocabulary which includes six cheerful little German comedies to be learned by heart by young students.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

JUST OUT

THE AMERICAN CATALOG 1900-1905

¶ The American Catalogue, issued heretofore in quarto volumes, is this year succeeded by the new American Catalog in octavo size, covering five years, January 1, 1900, to January 1, 1905. It will be continued by a corresponding publication every five years hereafter.

¶ The new volume is a final cumulation of the titles given in the Publishers' Weekly system of record by author, title, subject and series entries. Under this system author entries are designated by full-face type, title entries by ordinary Roman lower-case, subject entries by small caps, and series entries by italics, so that the system has the advantages of the dictionary catalog with the advantages of distinctive author, title, subject, and series alphabets. Each entry gives author's name, title, date of publication, series name, size, price, and publisher. Thus the leading facts regarding the book are put immediately at the service of the seeker.

¶ This volume takes the place this year of the "Annual American Catalog" which will be resumed in 1906.

¶ If demand should justify, and not otherwise, it is proposed to complement this Five-year Catalog with a supplementary volume, giving the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of the Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i. e., into five alphabets. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, book-dealers, and others who want the full material of the Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape.

¶ Both volumes will be substantially bound in half morocco, similar to the old American Catalogue. The price is $10 for the two together, or $6 for either separately. Subscribers are requested to send in orders promptly, stating whether both volumes are desired or only the first.

¶ The first volume is now ready; the second volume, if demanded, will be published later in the year. The edition in both cases is limited to the indicated demand.

SPECIAL NOTICE

☛ Owing to the increase in size and cost, the price of Vol. I. will be advanced July 1 to $7.50 per copy; the set from $10. to $12.

READY JUNE 30

A New Novel

By the Author of

"The CHALLONERS," "DODO," Etc.

The Image In the Sand

By E. F. BENSON

Cloth, $1.50

A LOVE-story dealing with the occult. An Englishman and his daughter are in an Egyptian town, and while there the father becomes intensely interested in the mysterious phenomena surrounding one side of the religious beliefs of certain of the people. During a midnight incantation which the father attends, and at which the spirit of his dead wife is supposed to have returned to earth, the daughter comes under the influence of an evil spirit, and throughout the story is possessed by this spirit at frequent intervals, with baneful results. She returns to England, where a wealthy young Englishman falls in love with her. At about the same time another man who possesses occult powers, and who knows of the secret of the girl's life, returns to England also, and, falling in love with the girl, uses extraordinary influence over her to bring her to him. The complications arising from this intimacy stimulate curiosity and make Mr. Benson's story one of unusual dramatic power. In his descriptions of the phenomena accompanying the incantation and in the mysterious atmosphere which he casts about at least two of his characters, Mr. Benson has done perhaps the most subtle writing which has yet come from his hand. The "Image in the Sand" is a book to entertain every novel reader and to provoke discussion. It speaks emphatically for the development of Mr. Benson's powers as a writer, though it also emphasizes that lightness of touch and happy faculty for sketching character in outline which have marked his several former books.

THE GREAT MOGUL

By LOUIS TRACY

Author of "The Wings of the Morning"

¶It's dramatic; it has a vivid personal style. To speak of it as one would of a rich country, one might say—its natural resources are enormous. Story readers, young or old, like a world of action; enough excitement for spice and enough love making to balance and blend the whole. It is like "The Wings of the Morning" in only one respect—it's a brilliant romance of love and adventure, but in many ways it is as different from "The Wings of the Morning" as automobiling is from trout fishing. Read it yourself, and you will see why I go so far afield to draw comparisons.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY, Chicago, will publish next Monday, July 10, "The Fate of a Crown," the novel by Schuyler Stanton, described in these columns a few weeks ago.

DODGE PUBLISHING CO. will publish July 10 "What to Have for Dinner," by Fannie Merritt Farmer, a most thorough and exhaustive work on this subject so puzzling to housekeepers. A fine index enables one to find all the recipes which are grouped under separate menus and illustrated in black and white and colors.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have added some attractive new books to their excellent series of full-colored toy books, at exceptionally low prices. The pictures are reproduced in colors from paintings, etc., by the very best artists and the stories are entertainingly written for children. Lists and samples are now ready.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out "At the Sign of the Fox," by the author of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife;" Dealey and Ward's "Textbook of Sociology;" "The Educative Process," by W. C. Bagley, of the Montana State Normal College; and "Special Method in Language," by Dr. Charles A. McMurry. Next week they will issue Maurice Hewlett's novel, "The Fool Errant;" and for the week following they promise Robert Herrick's new novel, "Memoirs of an American Citizen."

HARPER & BROTHERS have brought out a novel entitled "Love's Cross Currents," by Algernon Charles Swinburne, the only novel thus far written by the greatest of living English poets. It will come as a surprise to admirers of Swinburne's poetry to find the pages of his novel filled with delicious humor and the keenest of epigrams. The tragi-comedy growing out of the love affairs of four interesting young people, while they play at cross-purposes, is said to be an absorbing, delightful story. The story abounds with satire on certain phases of modern society.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on August 15 Eugene P. Lyle's book, "The Missourian," for which Ernest Haskell has made a number of striking illustrations. Mr. Lyle's novel exploits for the first time in fiction the romance and the tragedy of the Maximilian régime in Mexico. Coupled with it is the fresh and impressive story of Shelby's unconquerable confederates, who refused to surrender, and who crossed over to Mexico to offer their services there. At about the same time they will bring out "Claims and Counterclaims," by Mrs. Maud Wilder Goodwin, author of "The Four Roads to Paradise," etc. Though the story has been under way for two years it happens to be of peculiar timeliness in that it touches upon tainted money —not as a theme, but as an essential incident to the character development of the hero, a young physician. He alone, of a library board in a small Ohio town, stands out against the acceptance of a building fund from the political leader of the county; a man whose influence he knows to be bad. His stubbornness, as the people regard it, drives him through ostracism to New York. The career which he there achieves through original exploitation, and through a romance of much the same delicacy and depth as that of "The Four Roads to Paradise," forms a story of action and growth of character which leads to an exciting climax aboard an ocean liner.

Donaldson, Ja. The Westminster confession of faith and the Thirty-nine articles of the Church of England. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1905. 9+168 p. D. cl., $1.20.
The first chapters contain a discussion of the Westminster Confession of Faith of the Established Church of Scotland, or the United Presbyterian Church, and of the Creeds and Thirty-nine Articles of the Established Church of England, with the moral and religious aspects of compulsory subscription thereto. All this is introductory to an account of the recent litigation arising from the wish of the Free Church of Scotland to unite with the United Presbyterian Church, merging their funds and activities. The author outlines the arguments advanced in the succeeding appeals of the case and practically summarizes the points of religious controversy between the Scottish churches and their attitude towards disestablishment. As Dr. Donaldson is principal of the University of St. Andrews his work may be considered authoritative.

Irish peasant life in the thirties and succeeding years when Fenian uprisings were convulsing the country, is here depicted. The plot hinges on the trial of one Edmund Connors, who was arrested with others on the evidence given by "informers." The undying hatred shown by the peasants for these "informers" even to the third generation is the motif of a tale through which runs a slight thread of romance. The Irish patriot Daniel O'Connell appears as advocate in the trial scene. The book is pronouncedly Catholic in tone.

Edward Moran died in New York in 1901. In the following year litigation was begun by the executor of his estate regarding the maritime paintings here described, which the artist had presented to his wife. The suit was carried to several courts and finally decided in favor of Mrs. Moran in 1904. The writer of this book was chief attorney in the case and became so interested in the pictures that he wrote these brief descriptions and the biographical note to accompany the reproductions here given.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 8, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

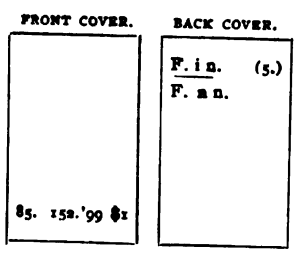
All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

PRICING OLD BOOKS.*

PRICING books before they are shelved is a matter that, of course, is left principally to the employer or his chief assistant, and need not therefore concern the novice. It is, indeed, a task of extraordinary difficulty, requiring judgment and ripe experience, and will be referred to in another chapter. Every book in stock, however, bears its selling price on a certain leaf or on one of the covers; often the minimum price at which the book may be sold is added to the maximum "asking" price, as well as the date of purchase, the price paid for it and a shelf number. In most cases in this country the selling price is marked in plain figures, and only the purchase price is given in cipher. In exceptional cases—in Europe almost in every case—all the bookseller's private memoranda are noted in cipher. Ciphers are usually made up of one word or of a sentence of nine letters easily remembered, the figure o being usually given in its regular form as o. Let us take, for example, the words "d a r i n g b o y."



1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9

In this case the selling price of the book, if to be sold at $1.25, would be marked "D,a n," the figure standing for the dollar generally being given in a capital letter followed by a period. A primitive form of cipher is made up of the first nine or ten letters of the alphabet, or of the same number of letters of the alphabet, following any given letter after a, as e f g h i j k l m n.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 o

In giving the sales price and the minimum price at which the bookseller would be willing to let the book go, the price of a $2.50 book that under circumstances might be sacrificed at $2 would be given thus: $\frac{\text{F. i n.}}{\text{F. n n.}}$ Most dealers in old books add to the sales price the price they paid for the book, and some dealers extend this information to include the date when the book was purchased, the price of the book when first published, as well as its catalogue number. In such a case let us imagine that the bottom of the inside of the front cover is reserved for the catalogue number, the date when bought, and the purchase price, and the top of the inside of the back cover contains the selling price and the original published price. The status of the book would then appear as follows:

This would indicate that the shelf number of the book is 85. It was bought on the 15th of February, 1899, at $1. Originally published at $5.00. To be sold at $2.50 or possibly at $2.00.

The custom of marking books, of course, varies according to individual notions, but every careful dealer will mark at least two of the items noted above—the buying and the selling prices. By so much as he adds further information, either to the book itself, or to his card catalogue, will he be better able to keep in closer touch with the progress and standing of his business, and to determine in what measure his prices, for example, are adequate or inadequate, and therefore to give his patrons satisfaction while he is also protecting himself.

* Continuation of the series of "The Profession of Bookselling." A list of authorities quoted will be given on conclusion.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF HAWTHORNE.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just brought out "A Bibliography of Nathaniel Nawthorne," compiled by Nina E. Browne, secretary of the American Library Association Publishing Board. The work, so far as we have been able to test it, is as complete as it is very likely possible to make a bibliography. At any rate, one has the feeling that whatever may have escaped the compiler of this work and that of her friend Mr. P. K. Foley, the well-known Boston dealer in old and rare books, and an acknowledged authority on what concerns the writings of our early American authors, who read the proof of the work, is of little account anyway. Therefore, to all intents and purposes, and notwithstanding the fact that no work of this kind can be final, the present compilation will be the definitive one, perhaps, for all time. Miss Brown has been engaged upon the work of compiling this bibliography for some sixteen years, having begun it in 1888 to fulfill a requirement for graduation at the Library School of Columbia College; but it was not presented for a degree until 1891, when the school had been transferred to the University of the State of New York. Thereafter the subject, which had originally been selected because there existed no published bibliography of Hawthorne's work, became so fascinating in itself that work upon it continued to occupy as much of the compiler's time as could be spared to it.

The volume, besides preface and a list of explanations, starts off with a chronological list of Hawthorne's works from 1828 to 1883. Then are given the four pseudonyms used by Hawthorne—"Oberon," "Ashley Allen Royce," or, "Rev. A. A. Royce," "Aubépine," and "Joseph Nicholson." Next is given a list of the bibliographies of Hawthorne, and then follows the bibliography itself. It contains, along with the entry of Hawthorne's published work, whether in book form or in old magazines or newspapers, everything that could be discovered in print about Hawthorne, in both books and periodicals. Much pains were given to the arrangement to make it as helpful as possible, both to the literary worker and to the collector. There has even been included a very full double-entry author and magazine index, the references in Poole's Index, as well as references to periodical literature not cited in Poole's, being given, which will be of special service to librarians and students. The volume is printed with great care on a fine all-rag paper, (especially made for the book,) with leaves entirely uncut, and bound in a smooth, dark English cloth, with paper label. The printing is on one side of the leaves only, the other remaining blank for any additional notes or comments the owner may care to insert. It is a large octavo, uniform in size with the large-paper edition of Hawthorne's Works, published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. in 1900. An etched portrait of Hawthorne forms the frontispiece. The edition consists of 550 numbered copies, of which 500 are for sale. The plates have been destroyed and no other edition will be issued (ix + 215 p. por. 8°. cl. $5.00 net.)

COPYRIGHT TREATY WITH NORWAY.

THE President, on July 3, announced by proclamation the fulfillment, with respect to citizens of Norway, of the provisions of the laws of the United States giving to foreigners the benefit of copyright in this country.

POSTAL MATTERS.

RULING REGARDING PRIZE CONTESTS.

OFFICE OF THE POST MASTER.

New York, June 30, 1905.

To Publishers:

The following information regarding prize schemes and contests is communicated in accordance with advice from the Assistant Attorney-General for the Post Office Department, and in modification of the circular letter of this office, dated June 3, 1905.

All enterprises offering prizes, for the privilege of participating in which a consideration is required, are not regarded as lotteries or "similar enterprises offering prizes dependent upon lot or chance." It is merely held that those in which the award of the prizes is put within the discretion of the offerer, or of a committee of persons designated by him, the scheme is a lottery, unless it is thrown open to the public without payment or consideration of any kind. Schemes, for instance, in which prizes are offered for the best name for a magazine or corporation, the best story, the best suggestion, the best essay or letter, etc., are regarded as lotteries, unless it is provided that all persons may compete for the prizes offered, freely and without consideration or payment of any kind. Of such enterprises the view is taken that the main purpose is evidently not to obtain by an open competition names, suggestions, essays, etc., excelling in merit, but to distribute prizes for the purpose of "bolstering or stimulating some other line of business;" and that as the award will depend upon the whim or taste of the committee or person to whom is assigned the duty of passing upon all names, suggestions or essays received, it is impossible to foretell or foreknow which will be determined to be the best.

Where the award of the prizes does not rest wholly within the discretion or judgment of the offerer or of a committee selected by him, but depends upon facts and circumstances which may definitely be ascertained, the rule that a consideration may not be required does not apply.

Publishers who contemplate the operation of prize contests, or to whom are offered advertisements of such schemes, are advised to ascertain whether they are permissible in the mail, and should submit to this office the advertisements or matter relating to such enterprises before printing the same in their publications

W. R. WILLCOX,
Postmaster.

ILLEGAL INCLOSURES IN PERIODICALS.

OFFICE OF THIRD ASS'T P. M. GENERAL,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26, 1905.

To all Postmasters:

PERIODICALS mailed at the second-class rates are being made the vehicle to cover for the transmission of samples of paper (merchandise) to the detriment of the postal revenue from matter of the fourth class.

This is accomplished by printing advertisements upon sheets of the paper to which the advertisements relate and attaching them as advertising pages to the periodicals. The effect of this is that actual, tangible exhibits of stock, such as waxed papers, oiled papers, glazed papers, tissue papers, writing papers, cover papers, wall papers, wrapping papers, etc., are passing in the mails at the rates provided by law for matter of the second class only.

This is an abuse of the second-class mailing privilege and will not be permitted. On and after September 1, next, all publications containing such exhibits of paper will be charged with the fourth-class rate, regardless of the fact that such specimens or exhibits purport to be, and are inserted as "advertisements." The authority for sufferance until the date named is conferred by section 484, P. L. & R.

When, after September 1, it can be determined from the advertisement, or the advertisement and the paper taken together, that it is printed upon the stock advertised to the end that the texture, finish, tensile strength, etc., thereof may be examined, it will be held to be merchandise and subject to the fourth-class rate, regardless of any device or evasiveness in the language of the advertisement thereon. Care must be taken not to misapply this rule in cases where papers of different color or grade are used for the sole purpose of improving the appearance of advertisements.

EDWIN C. MADDEN,
Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HENRY WHITNEY MCVICKAR, the illustrator, died July 4, at Southampton, L. I., aged forty-four. Mr. McVickar about twenty years ago contributed pictures for Life. Among the books he illustrated are "Daisy Miller," and Bangs's "Mr. Bonaparte of Corsica." He was one of the founders of Vogue. Later he was at the head of the McVickar-Gaillard Realty and Trust Co.

THE REV. DR. GEORGE EDWARD DAY, professor emeritus of Hebrew at Yale, died in New Haven, Conn., July 2. Dr. Day was born at Pittsfield, Mass., March 19, 1815, and was the second oldest graduate of Yale. He was possibly best known in America and Europe because of the prominent position he occupied in the committee of theologians who revised the Old and New Testaments. He was one of the contributors to Smith's Bible Dictionary and to a number of other standard works on sacred subjects.

PROFESSOR MARCIUS WILLSON, author of a number of school books, died at Vineland, N. J., July 2, aged ninety-two. Professor Willson was born at West Stockbridge, Mass., December 8, 1813, and was graduated from Union College in 1836. For a while he taught school, reading law between times. In 1841 he was admitted to the bar, and practiced until attacked by bronchitis, as the result of much public speaking. From 1849 to 1853 he was President of the Canandaigua Academy. In 1861, upon its founding, the Presidency of Vassar College was offered him, but as he was engaged in literary work he declined. He wrote nearly fifty text books on drawing, political economy, history, etc. His series of readers were in almost universal use forty years. It is said that in the last half century he had received royalties amounting to $250,000. Among his other books are "Mosaics of Bible History," "Wonderful Story of Old," and "Principles of Finance and Philosophy of Bimetallism."

PROFESSOR JEAN JACQUES ÉLISÉE RECLUS, the celebrated geographer, died at Brussels July 4. Professor Reclus was born March 13, 1830, at Sainte-Foy-la-Grande, (Gironde,) and after studying at various universities was for some years under K. Ritter, of the University of Berlin. He fought against the Napoleonic coup d'etat in 1851, and, as a refugee, lived in England, Ireland, the United States and South American countries for some years. He fought with the Commune in 1871, and was sentenced to transportation for life, but the sentence, on the petition of scholars throughout the world, was commuted in 1872. Among his works were: "Voyage à la Sierra-Nevada de Sainte-Marthe," "Les Villes d'hiver de la Méditerrané et les Alpes Maritimes," "La Terre Geographie Universelle," "Histoire d'un Ruisseau," "Histoire d'une Montagne," "Evolution, Revolution, l'Ideal Anarchique," and a "Dictionnaire des Communes de la France." Since 1894 he had been professor of comparative geography at the new University of Brussels.

IN the death of the author of the "Pike County Ballads," "Castilian Days," the life of Abraham Lincoln, etc., the world of letters as well as the world at large loses one of its brightest ornaments. Though obliged years ago to forego literature, which to him was always an avocation, the quality of John Hay's literary character, nevertheless, had so impressed itself upon men of art and letters that he was classed only a short time ago by an association of literary men as among the four leading American writers. Mr. Hay always had at heart the progress of literature and art, and staunchly supported every movement for their protection. He will be sorely missed in the coming campaign for the codification of the copyright laws and in the unravelling of its contradictions. John Hay was born in Salem, Ind., October 8, 1838, and graduated from Brown University in 1858. With Nicolay, his collaborator in writing the great history of the administration of the martyred President, he was one of the secretaries of Abraham Lincoln from 1861 to 1865. He also acted as his adjutant and aide-de-camp, and served for some time under Generals Hunter and Gillmore, with the rank of major, being subsequently brevetted colonel. He was first secretary of legation at Paris, chargé d'affaires at Vienna in 1867-'68, and then secretary of legation at Madrid. From 1870 to 1875 he was on the editorial staff of the New York Tribune, and from 1879 to 1881 was first assistant secretary of state under President Hayes. As Secretary of State both under McKinley and Roosevelt, Mr. Hay showed himself a man of fine temper, eminently capable of taking a part in moulding and making history.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have recently changed their policy in the matter of the return privilege of unsold copies of Scribner's Magazine, and the magazine will hereafter be returnable.

EUGENE P. LYLE, whose novel, "The Missourian," has just been published by Doubleday, Page & Co., will inaugurate a series of notable articles on "The Mastery of the Caribbean" in the September World's Work. Mr. Lyle, a well-known writer for magazines, has spent two months travelling in that region, and will remain there several months longer.

THE August Garden Magazine will be devoted to Evergreens, which can be planted better during August than any other time of the year. It is the first time any American gardening publication has made so complete a presentation of the subject. Lists of the best kinds to plant in all parts of the country compiled from reports of the most competent experts will tell people where to avoid errors which are commonly made.

THE Burlington Magazine, published by Robert Grier Cooke, 307 Fifth Avenue, New York, opens with an editorial on the extinction of the middle-class collector. Among the contributed articles are "Tempera Painting," by Roger E. Fry; personal reminiscences of Constantin Meunier, and his aim and place in the art of the 19th century, by Professor R. Petrucci and Charles Ricketts, with three plates; "Early French Paté Tendre in the Fitzhenry Collection," by C. H. Wylde, with three plates; "The Rothschild MS., in the British Museum, of Les Cas des Malheureux Nobles Hommes et Femmes," by Sir Edward Maunde Thompson, with three plates; an account of Shearer, one of the minor English furniture makers of the 18th century, by R. S. Clouston, with three plates; and the conclusion of the sketch of Andrea dal Castagno, by Herbert P. Horne, with one plate. There are notes on Art in America and the usual departments and reviews.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

LIFE PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, is about to publish a new book by James M. Flagg, the author of "Tomfoolery," a clever collection of verse brought out last year. The new book is to be entitled "If: a guide to bad manners."

APROPOS of the recent publication of Mr. Andrew Carnegie's book, "The Life of James Watt," it is interesting to state that his first successful book, "The Empire of Business," has been published in the following countries: Spain, Germany, France, Holland, Russia, Italy, Norway and Denmark.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY are publishing the third edition of "The Indifference of Juliet," by Grace S. Richmond, and second editions of "John Henry Smith," by Frederick Upham Adams, "The Mortgage on the Brain," by Vincent Harper, and "Stories of Inventors," by Russell Doubleday.

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co., Boston, will publish at once F. Dickberry's "The Storm of London," which, in spite of a farcical plot, is really a criticism of English society manners and national policy, and blends the most modern ideas with solemn moralizing of the eighteenth century variety put into the mouths of servants.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published "The Supremacy of the Bible, and Its Relations to Speculative Science, Ancient History and the Higher Criticism," by J. Mercier McMullen; also, "The Temporary and Permanent in New Testament Revelation," by the Rev. Dr. H. P. Nichols, the Bohlen Lecture for 1905.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in preparation "A Text-book of Sociology," by J. Q. Dealey, who has been assisted by Dr. Lester F. Ward. The object has been to select, to condense and to restate the principles and applications set forth in Dr. Ward's previous works, with special attention to the form of the material, so as to make the book available for the use of reading clubs and classes.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a work on Kate Greenaway, by Marion H. Spielmann, the English art critic. The work will contain autobiographical chapters of Miss Greenaway's childhood, and a record of her career with an account of her friendships with the interesting people of her time. Some fifty intimate letters from Ruskin are given with Miss Greenaway's replies which, in addition to their brightness are especially attractive for the little pen-and-ink sketches which she used to scatter up and down her letters. The book will be profusely illustrated in color from material hitherto unpublished, except in the case of a few of her masterpieces. They have also under way a new volume of "Ranch Verses," by Larry Chittenden, whose earlier volume has gone into its twelfth edition.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY announce for early publication a new story by Ruth Louise Sheldon, entitled "Dolly, Daughter of New England." Starting out with the merry escapade of Dolly and her room-mate at a fashionable boarding-school, which finally is the cause of her being expelled, the story takes us to her aunt's in the country where her cousin, Robert, appears as suitor; across the Atlantic with her girl friend to another aunt in London, where Dolly meets Lord Hamilton, whom she later marries; their trip to the Continent, and life at St. Petersburg and Monte Carlo. Through it all Dolly is the typical New England girl, no amount of contact with fashionable society being able to efface the plain truths stamped upon her character in the old home. The book is charmingly illustrated.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS will publish on August 15 a book entitled "Russia and Its Crisis," by Paul Milyoukov, formerly professor of History at the Universities of Moscow and Sofia. The book aims to explain the internal crisis in Russia; it offers a timely exposition of deep-seated ulcers of the Russian political system, and it makes clear that an interpretation of existing conditions, to be at all adequate, must necessarily be based upon a general and comprehensive survey of the historical circumstances under which the Russian civilization has been developed. The author is a typical representative of the liberal party known as the "intellectuals," and his activity in the cause of freedom has already earned him calumny, imprisonment, and exile. They will publish in September a work on "General Sociology: an exposition of the main developments in sociological theory from Spencer to Ratzenhofer, by Professor Albion W. Small.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready a volume entitled "The Church of Christ," by a writer who wishes his work considered without reference to his identity. The author presents Christianity as an original religion in contrast with all preceding religions; reviews all cases of pardon in the New Testament; maintains that the Church of Christ should be one or identical in organization, teaching and practise with the New Testament church, before creed or sect or party began, and claims that such unity, according to Christ's own words, is essential to its complete and final triumph in the world. They have also just brought out "Parisians Out of Doors," by F. Berkeley Smith, who has already done such charming work in "The Real Latin Quarter;" and in "How Paris Amuses Herself." This volume, illustrated by the author and others, also describes Normandy, Trouville, Monte Carlo and other places familiar to American travellers. The descriptions are bright and humorous and the whole book is written in happiest vein.

THE birthday, July 6, and the day of death, July 18, of John Paul Jones, together with the present-day interest in the transfer of his remains, form three good reasons for the anniversary exhibition that has been opened by the Print Department of the New York Public Library in the lower hall of the Lenox Library Building. There are portraits, old and new, pictures of the famous naval commander's exploits (among them various engravings of the engagement between the Bonhomme Richard and the Serapis), autograph letters by Jones, a facsimile of his commission as a captain, and a little library of books, including some rare and interesting material. Several editions of a certain biography are coupled in each case with a sketch of some unfortunate, kidnapped and sold as a slave. The pirate costume in some of the portraits of Jones recalls the reputation that still seems to cling to him in England, for in the Catalogue of Printed Books in the British Museum we are referred from Jones (John Paul) to Paul, afterwards Paul Jones (John) the pirate. On turning to Paul, we find the pirate toned down to Admiral in the Russian Navy. The portraits include engravings by English, German and French artists contemporary with Jones, (Moreau le jeune among the list,) as well as modern prints by American engravers, and illustrate the various types of his portraits that have become familiar. The exhibit has been arranged by Frank Weitenkampf, curator of the Print Department.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers; to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

What to Have for Dinner

By FANNIE MERRITT FARMER

¶ This book will be in great demand. It is a most thorough and exhaustive work on the subject named. Fully illustrated with many plates in color and black and white.

¶ Miss Farmer has arranged her work by menus, a most convenient way for the busy housekeeper. A complete index covering several pages greatly adds to the value of the book.

¶ This book will receive a large share of attention in our Fall advertising.

12mo. Cloth. $1.50

Nelson's Colored Toy Books

This year we have added some splendid books to our excellent series of full colored toy books. The prices are exceptionally low for the quality of the work, so that they are bound to have a large sale. The colored pictures are the production of the very best artists, and the stories are delightfully written for children.

The Fate of a Crown

by Schuyler Staunton

A MOST ENGROSSING NOVEL OF LOVE and ADVENTURE

It is a story full of action from start to finish, written with the ease and grace of one who has something to write and knows how to write it. No words are wasted in long, tiresome descriptions, and yet nothing is lacking to make clear every scene and situation. There is not a prosaic passage in the whole book.

A NOVEL

by

Algernon Charles Swinburne

Love's Cross-Currents

ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE

THE publication of a novel by the greatest of living English poets—the only novel he has ever written—is an event of unusual importance. Lovers of Swinburne's poems will find in his prose the same sweep of fancy, passionate warmth, and grace of narration that his poetry possesses in so marked a degree.

¶ It will come as a surprise, however, to find the pages filled with delicious humor and the keenest of epigrams. The tragi-comedy growing out of the love affairs of four interesting young people, while they play at cross-purposes, is an absorbing, delightful story.

READY IN AUGUST

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA

has written a new story

PIPETOWN SANDY

The march king, who marched his way into popular fiction with his delightful romance, "The Fifth String," again shows that his skill with the pen is equal to his skill with the baton.

"Pipetown Sandy" is a tale of Mr. Sousa's own city of Washington in the sixties,—a tale combining adventure, humor, the tenderness of boyhood and the interest of a novel love plot.

Sandy himself is unlike anybody you have ever met before, but for all that he is the realest of the real. Many Illustrations by C. L. HINTON. 12*mo*, cloth, $1.50.

NOTES IN SEASON.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. are planning the publication in book form of a selection from among the short stories which O. Henry has been contributing weekly to the New York Sunday World. "Mr. Henry" is planning, moreover, a rest this summer, during which to get down on paper a novel which he and his publishers have long had in mind.

DODD, MEAD & Co. are preparing for early issue "The Declaration of Independence: Its History," by J. H. Hazleton. The book begins with 1774, following with the first steps taken by the colonies, Jefferson's share in the drafting of the Declaration, the help of John Adams, the position of Hancock, and an account of how, when and where each member signed the document. There is also a description of the effect of the Declaration on this country and England. The book will be fully illustrated and will be issued in two styles—in one volume for the trade and in an edition de luxe in two volumes.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in press a volume entitled "Romance of French Abbeys," by Elizabeth W. Champney. The book, which is the fruit of a sojourn last summer in France, deals principally with extracts put into modern form from the chronicles of the old monastic establishments. Among them will be "The Golden Mystery," an episode in the history of the Abbey of Vezelay; "The Vision of Saint Bernard," a legend of Clairvaux; "The Flageolet of Saint Bruno," a legend of Le Grand Chartreuse; "A Crown of Thorns," an incident in the boyhood of St. Louis; "A Fugitive Abbot," a romance of the Abbey of Saint Wandrille; "The Wolf of St. Francis," from the chronicles of the Abbey of Mont Majori. The book will be handsomely illustrated with two colored prints, nine photogravures and fifty half-tone pictures.

JOHN MURPHY COMPANY have just issued a new book entitled "Wandewana's Prophecy and Fragments in verse," a collection of poems by Eliza L. M. Mulcahy. They have in press new editions in the Irving Series of Botany, Astronomy and Chemistry, rewritten and revised by professors in St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn. They call the attention of buyers to their extensive line of Catholic prayer books and Bibles, comprising books of the latest text, and their importation of bindings for this season embraces the newest leathers and the best designs of the leading European binders. For variety and style their books have been long and favorably known to the Catholic public, and to maintain their high standard the greatest care is devoted to the selection of the material entering their structure, paper, type, design and workmanship all being strictly first-class.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish about the third week in August "Minerva's Manœuvres," Charles Battell Loomis's first novel, which is "the cheeful tale of a 'return to nature,'" in which the author gently satirizes the "nature study" craze while proving his own devotion to nature itself. The book will be illustrated by F. R. Conger. They will publish early in the fall "Lodgings in Town," by Arthur Henry, which will complete the trilogy of which "An Island Cabin" and "The House in the Woods" have been part. Like the first two books this is an intimate, unexaggerated account of the experiences which the author passed through while seeking for an ideal form of existence in New York City. Another book to be published soon is Captain Ralph Bonehill's new story for boys, entitled "The Winning Run, or, the Base Ball Boys of Lakeport," the second volume in his Outdoor Series, of which the first volume, "An Island Camp," appeared last year.

Barbara, (pseud.) At the sign of the fox: a romance. N. Y., Macmillan, 1905. 5+372 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

An unsensational story of probable and possible incidents and of real people, permeated with the same love of nature and of dumb animals that characterized the "People of the whirlpool" and "The garden of a commuter's wife," by the same author. A New York family living in luxury, are reduced to comparative poverty by the failure of the father. The shock of his losses gives him a paralytic stroke, and the care of the family devolves practically upon the eldest daughter. She opens a tea garden in a Boston suburb, and has various experiences, amusing and otherwise.

Church (The) of Christ, by A layman. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1905. c. 2+336 p. O. cl., $1 net.

The author presents Christianity as an original or new religion adapted to all mankind. He points out that it is new in promising forgiveness of sin and eternal life, in teaching the fatherhood of God, in being positive, and original in that it is missionary. All cases of pardon in the New Testament are reviewed. The important province of miracles, prayer, and pardon in religion is fully discussed. The theory is advanced that the Church of Christ is a complete organization, its officers being divinely appointed. It consequently excludes all other churches, whether ancient or modern, as not sanctioned by inspiration.

Collins, John. The book of life. Saginaw, Mich., published by the author, J: Collins, 1905. 5-199 p. diagrs., S. pap., 50 c.

The author says: "Natural philosophy and the figurative language of the Bible being in perfect harmony, we will present them jointly as our authority in this book, and so endeavor to show the true philosophic meaning of the different features of the figures set forth in the garden parable, in the second, third and fourth chapters of Genesis; so making manifest what the garden, the trees, the serpent, the woman, and the Lord God represent; why that act of the first Adam was unavoidable, and how its effects will be obviated in the human race, so that their lost birthright will be restored to them."

This is a far more ambitious and comprehensive attempt at a descriptive interpretation of the Japanese art of jiu-jitsu, or jiudo, than was undertaken in the writers' earlier volumes on the subject. It presents in its entirety the Kano system of jiu-jitsu, devised by Professor Jiguro Kano, with the additions thereto that have been made by those famous jiu-jitsians, Hoshino and Tsutsumi. It is the system officially adopted by the Japanese government. It begins with the simplest of combat tricks and progresses by degrees to tricks that may be made, in stress of dire necessity, most disastrous and even deadly.

"The present volume, on 'The struggle for universal empire' and the following, on 'The establishment of territorial sovereignty,' may be regarded as indicating the foundations of modern diplomacy. They trace the tragic history of the rise and conflict of two great international institutions, the Empire and the Papacy, the defeat of their ambitions, and the development of modern national states. In future volumes it is intended to consider the diplomacy of the age of absolutism, of the Revolutionary Era, of the constitutional movement, and of commercial imperialism, thus bringing the history of international development down to the present time. Each volume, however, is intended to be for the period which it covers, a complete work in itself."—Preface.

This earth is not clad in polished steel, nor magnetic iron, nor in the solution used as a substitute for that purpose, nor are any of the planets from the smallest to the greatest. The fact that they are forever changing their positions from day to day ought in itself be sufficient evidence to destroy that fallacy. . . ."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 15, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE DECISIONS OF JUDGE RAY IN THE MACY CASES.

THE two cases brought respectively by the Bobbs-Merrill Co. and by Charles Scribner's Sons against the Macy concern have been decided by Judge Ray, sitting by assignment in the Federal Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York. In both cases the relief asked for by the complainants is refused. The cases are practically identical, with the exception that in the Bobbs-Merrill suit the special copyright notice printed by those publishers in the copies of "The Castaway" figures in the case, while in the Scribner suit reliance was had on the ordinary copyright notice. We give elsewhere in full the decision in the Scribner case, and the distinctive portion of the Bobbs-Merrill case.

The contention of both complainants was that under the monopolistic protection granted by the copyright law publishers had the right to provide conditions as to the sale of the books copyrighted under agreements with notice to dealers. The pith of Judge Ray's decisions is that while such an agreement is possible as a matter of contract, it is not necessarily involved in notices to the trade, and in that respect cannot be maintained as a part of copyright. The decisions do not go very fully into the cases, and both are likely to be appealed to the higher branches of the Federal Courts for ultimate decision. What is at present indicated by Judge Ray's dicta is the legal distinction drawn, as to other goods as well as regarding books, between an actual title passed to a purchaser and a license which retains ownership to some extent in the hands of the original seller. It is possible that should these decisions be upheld in the higher courts, they may lead to a modification in the method of selling books through the regular trade, but the decisions scarcely indicate more than this.

These decisions, it should be noted, are not in the main suits known as the Macy cases, but in the more recent and subsidiary suits brought by these two individual houses—the main cases being those brought by the Macy concern itself to declare the illegality of the organization and the methods of the American Publishers' Association. The recent incidental decisions as to demurrers and the like, as we have already pointed out, have not strengthened the fundamental Macy case, and there is as yet no good reason to believe that the American Publishers' Association will not be ultimately successful in upholding the present plans of reform.

IN Printers' Ink for July 5, 1905, Mr. Charles L. Benjamin prints an interview by himself with Third Assistant Postmaster-General Madden, which is accompanied by an excellent portrait of that official. The interview is an interesting statement of Mr. Madden's views, and displays on his part an evident sincerity of aim coupled with more or less myopic limitation in seeing "the other side." For instance, though much is said of the triumphs of the Department in the courts, almost nothing is said about its checks or defeats, or about the mistakes, particularly in rulings a few years since as to inserts and supplements, which the Department was obliged to modify without court compulsion by the evident absurdity of the rulings. Mr. Madden states, probably with sincerity, that he means to treat all periodicals with equal fairness; but, after emphasizing again the recent orders as to supplements, he "throws up his hands" by saying that the ruling "will not affect what you describe as the 'Sunday magazine.'" Mr. Madden is not yet prepared to disclose his own plans of postal reform, comparing himself to Togo, who "did not disclose his plans until the opportune moment had arrived." The interview shows both the strength and the weakness of Mr. Madden's administration of the Department, and should be read by all who are interested in accomplishing real postal reform and desire to do justice to a much-criticized official.

THE decision that musical composers have no rights which the manufacturers of automatic musical instruments or mechanical records are bound to respect, whether or not supported in the higher courts, throws important light on the necessity for copyright revision. Of course, except for the spiked barrel of the hand organ and music box, these musical records did not exist at the time the copyright law was framed and could not be directly included within its provisions. The courts have, nevertheless, often stretched a general principle to cover applications which were not possible at the time of the original provision, and this the higher courts may do in the present case; but in any event, here is new proof that the copyright law, in terms, is sadly behind the times.

DECISION IN THE SUITS OF SCRIBNER'S VS. MACY.

FOLLOWING is the decision in full rendered by Judge Ray, of the United States Circuit Court in the suit of Charles Scribner's Sons vs. R. H. Macy & Co.:

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

Charles Scribner and Arthur H. Scribner, trading as Charles Scribner's Sons.
v.
Isidor Straus and Nathan Straus, trading as R. H. Macy and Company.
} In Equity, No. 8583.

Charles Scribner's Sons, Incorporated,
v.
Isidor Straus and Nathan Straus, trading as R. H. Macy and Company.
} In Equity, No. 8936.

Suits in equity to restrain defendants from infringing complainants' copyrights for books by selling copyrighted books at retail, without a license from complainants, at a lower price than fixed and not maintaining retail prices as provided by the regulations of the American Publishers' Association. Also to restrain defendants from contributory infringement of such copyrights by inducing wholesale dealers and jobbers in such books to violate their agreements with complainants as to the sale of copyright books.

The defendants deny infringement in any sense. Deny that complainants have proved a cause of action. Allege that complainants parted with title to all books the defendants have purchased and sold and that being their property they had the right to sell them at such price as they saw fit to fix.

Stephen H. Olin, and Olin, Clark & Phelps,
for complainants.
Spiegelberg & Wise, with
John G. Carlisle and Edmond E. Wise, of counsel, for defendants.

RAY, District Judge.

In the first action, No. 8583, the alleged limitation on the right to sell books at retail at less than a fixed price expired before the final hearing, hence no injunction, only an accounting could be granted in that case. The parties to that suit all reside in the State of New York. There is no diversity of citizenship.

In the second suit, No. 8936, the limited time had not expired and, as defendants had incorporated under the laws of New Jersey before bringing the action, there exists in such action diversity of citizenship.

If there is no infringement of a copyright shown in such first action, No. 8583, it must be dismissed. In the second action if defendants are violating complainants' rights and a cause of action is shown and the amount involved is sufficient the action may be sustained even if infringement of a copyright is not shown. In this action the complainants not only allege infringement of their copyrights, but allege that they have valid contracts for the sale of their copyrighted books with certain parties which are or were being carried out by them and that defendants wrongfully, etc., have induced and are inducing such parties to violate such contracts by false representations and other acts to the great injury of the complainants' business. They set forth certain facts tending to show grounds for equitable relief and an injunction.

The complainant is the owner of a large number of copyrights and is a publisher. It publishes and puts on the market its copyrighted books, but asserts that it puts them on the market under certain limitations and restrictions which attach to the books and the right to sell in the hands of all persons having notice of such restriction. The complainants are members of an association known as the American Publishers' Association. This association has made certain rules as to the purchase and sale by publishers and dealers of copyrighted books. These rules are attached to the complaint and set out in full in the opinion of this Court in the case of The Bobbs-Merrill Company against these same defendants, just decided but not yet reported. In that case, while the facts were somewhat different, the questions of law involved here were extensively discussed.

Paragraph three of those rules provides as follows:

"That the Members of the Association agree that such net copyrighted books, and all others of their books, shall be sold by them to those booksellers only who will maintain the retail price of such net copyrighted books for one year, and to those publishers and jobbers only who will sell their books further to no one known to them to cut such net prices, or whose name has been given to them by the Association as one who cuts such prices, or who fails to abide by such fair and reasonable rules and regulations as may be established by local associations as hereinafter provided."

The complainants in their attempt to live up to these rules of this association, and to enforce them against others, and these defendants, and to maintain the fixed retail price of books sold in the retail trade, and to exclude from the business of selling their publications or the publications of any other publisher of books (copyrighted publications), those who will not observe such rules, have fixed the retail price of their copyrighted book and adopted the following method of selling, viz: for stock orders a salesman in most instances goes to a dealer and takes his order, or the dealer orders by mail, or, if a New York City dealer is purchasing he sends a messenger. As to notifying dealers, purchasers, of the rules as to net prices and discount on fiction, fixed by the rules of such ascociation, the complainants print a notice on their catalogues and on their bill heads, reading as follows: on catalogues—

"Charles Scribner's Sons' Catalogue of Publications.
All Books sent Postpaid except where Postage is Indicated.

Note to the Trade:

Copyrighted Net books published after May 1st, 1901, and copyrighted fiction published after February 1st, 1902, are sold on condition that prices be maintained, as provided by the Regulations of The American Publishers' Association. On such books the month of publication is given except where the book is announced as In Press.

Books starred are mostly Educational and are subject to a slightly different discount to the Trade than other Net books."

On bill heads:

"All claims for Allowance must be made within five days after receipt of Goods—Not Responsible for Books ordered sent by Mail, or sent out to be Packed.

In complainants' evidence we find this on this subject: Q. "Is any other method taken to bring the rules of the association to the notice of purchasers in the wholesale department?" A. "Not by Charles Scribner's Sons." As to new customers the witness says: Q. "When a new firm comes to deal with Charles Scribner's Sons that is unknown to you, what do you do?" A. "We get what information we can as to their standing and whether or not they will be willing to maintain the rules of the association by referring the matter to the association for investigation, or sometimes by sending them this blank which has been presented." Q. "Can you say whether or not these rules are in one way or another, brought to the attention of every purchaser from the wholesale department?" A. "No, sir." Q. "They are not brought to their notice?" A. "Except in the way I have described, by the bill heads and the catalogues and in case of a new purchaser, by correspondence and sending that notice in some cases." Q. "Have any sales been made by Charles Scribner's Sons since the adoption of those rules in their wholesale department except subject to those rules?" A. "No, sir." Q. "They are not brought to their notice?" A. "Except in the way I have described, by the bill heads and the catalogues and in case of a new purchaser, by correspondence and sending that notice in some cases."

It is conceded that defendants knew of the rules and of the custom of the complainants. Defendants did not purchase any books of complainants. They had a purchasing agent who purchased them where he could get them, paying therefor in cash.

In the Bobbs-Merrill case, just decided and above referred to, this Court has held, following the Circuit Court of Appeals in the Second Circuit, in Harrison v. Maynard, Merrill & Co., 26 U. S. App. 99; 61 Fed. Rep. 689, that so long as the publisher of a copyrighted book (such publisher owning the copyright) retains the title to the copies which he has the exclusive right to vend by virtue of the copyright, he can impose restrictions upon the manner in which and the persons to whom the copies can be sold. If agents or licensees, intrusted with the possession of such books, not having title, violate their instructions and sell to a person who has knowledge of the restricted power, such sale of such copyrighted book is an infringement and may be restrained. This right results from the fact that the owner of the copyright and the copyrighted book has not parted with the title to the book or to the copyright. The right to restrain the sale is gone, however, when the owner of the copyright and of the copy or copies in question parts with his title to such copy or copies and confers an absolute title on the purchaser, even if such sale be accompanied with an agreement for a restricted use, or for a sale at a fixed price.

We come then, in these cases, to the question whether the complainants in either case retained title to the books, or any of them, that passed to the possession of the defendants and which they have been and are engaged in selling. It seems clear that they did not. They conferred no conditional or defeasible title, but an absolute title. Some books the defendants purchased direct of the complainants at retail and paid the full retail price. They sold same at retail at a loss. This they had the right to do. They were the absolute owners. The others were purchased of dealers who had purchased of the complainants and paid the full price demanded. There was no notice on each book and it does not appear that these dealers had seen the catalogues, or that they had a bill of sale containing the notice. But, however this may be, the notice does not retain the title, or restrict or limit the title conveyed. If so the complainants could have replevied the books when they found they were being sold in violation of instructions given their licensees intrusted with the books. It may be, and may not be, that the dealers from whom the defendants took title knew of the conditions of the notice when they purchased of the complainants. If they did they impliedly agreed that in selling the books which they then purchased of complainants they would maintain prices. If so the relation was contractual and the remedy of complainants is for a breach of that contract if they can find the person or firm who violated it. The notice is not a license agreement, as in the Neostyle case, recently decided by this Court, and others there cited. (Cortelyou et al. v. Charles Eneu Johnson Co.) Reference is made to the opinion of this Court in the Bobbs-Merrill case for a full statement of the law. In this case the notice does not purport to restrict title, or create an agency, or establish a license agreement.

There is no evidence that will justify a finding that defendants have unlawfully or improperly induced any person to violate their contract, if any, with complainants.

The defendants are entitled to a decree dismissing the complaint with costs.

EPITOME OF THE DECISION IN THE BOBBS-MERRILL CO.'S SUIT.

THE decision in the Bobbs-Merrill case is much fuller than in that of the Scribner suit, but the same principle holds for both. It is in part as follows:

"From these facts, which are conceded, it appears that the original purpose of the combination and agreement of the association of publishers, including the complainant, was (1) to maintain the net retail price of all copyrighted books published by the members of such association, or any of them, at such price per book as might be fixed by the publisher of that book; and (2) to prevent the sale at retail of any one or more of such copyrighted books by any dealer in books at retail at a less price per copy than so fixed. Thereupon the persons, firms and corporations in the combination, including the complainant, formed a corporation under the name American Publishers' Association. This corporation included a large majority of all the publishers of all books, both copyrighted and uncopyrighted, in the United States. . . .

"The declared object and purpose of this combination," the decision further declares, "is (1) to fix the retail price of books; (2) to maintain such retail price; (3) to refuse to furnish or sell any books to any dealer in books who does not maintain such prices, that is, who sells a book at less than the fixed price; (4) to compel all publishers and dealers in books, in practical effect at least, to come into the combination and enforce and maintain these prices or be blacklisted and driven from the business; (5) to drive out of the business of general publishing and bookselling all who refuse or neglect to maintain these prices.

"The freedom of the owner of a book, any book (except those specially excepted), duly purchased and paid for, to sell the same soiled or injured or read and no longer desired, was thus attempted to be destroyed. The right of a retail bookseller to sell to the purchaser of fifty books for his library at a less price than to the purchaser of one book must not be exercised under the pain and penalty of having his supply of books cut off and of being driven from the business and financially ruined."

In conclusion the decision states: "The defendants have not infringed and are not threatening to infringe complainants' copyright, nor have they violated any contract. The complainant is seeking to enforce against defendants an unlawful combination agreement to which such defendants are not parties and by which they have not consented to be bound in selling books of which they are the absolute owners. The same result on a similar state of facts as to the effect of such notice was reached by the court in Bobbs-Merrill Co. v. Snellenburg, 131 Fed. Rep. 530.

"The defendants are entitled to a decree dismissing the complaint with costs."

THE BOOKTRADE AT CHICAGO.

FOR a week or longer the representatives of the publishing houses have been gathering at the Palmer House to show their fall books. FRAUD ORDER AGAINST PUBLISHERS.

THE Post Office Department at Washington, on July 11, issued a fraud order against the Koch Publishing Company, of 341 East Seventy-eighth Street, New York City. The firm, it is alleged, advertised for sale certain literature which it is said it represented in a misleading way. The firm has branch offices at 124 Java Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and 357 East 124th Street, New York City.

LECTURES ON HOW TO PRINT AND PUBLISH.

THE West Side Young Men's Christian Association, 318 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York, has arranged a course of lectures on how to print and publish. The course will begin on October 11, and will continue on Wednesday evenings thereafter until the close of the season. The tuition fee for the entire course will be $25, which will include a limited membership in the association for one year.

The course will be divided into five parts—type composition, press work, illustrating and engraving, estimating and publishing, each part to be dealt with by competent hands. The following programme has been planned:

Printing—Opening Address, George French, Boston. Type Composition—Detail in Type Composition, Will Bradley, Concord, Mass.; The Idea as a Determining Factor in Laying Out a Job, Henry T. Bailey, editor School Art Books, North Scituate, Mass.; Composition as Related to Books, George French, Boston; Typesetting, a Possible Science, F. F. Helmer, Lockport, N. Y.; The Practical Side of Typography, Edmund G. Gress, New York; Proof Reading, F. Horace Teall, Springfield, Mass.; Typesetting by Machinery, Paul Nathan, New York. Press Work, W. J. Kelly, New York; Ink, James Ullman, New York; Paper, C. K. Urquhart, editor Paper Trade Journal, New York. Illustrating and Engraving—The Art and Purpose of Illustration, Herbert Johnson, New York, former artist in chief, Kansas City Journal; The Value of Illustration and Decoration as a Practical Aid to Printers, F. W. Vreeland, New York; Engraving, Max Levy, Philadelphia; Bookbinding, C. M. Smith, supt. bindery, Methodist Book Concern, New York. Estimating, I. H. Blanchard, New York; J. H. Ramaley, New York, and F. W. Heath, New York; The Making of a Book, J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa. Publishing—What to Publish and How to Merchandise It, Frank Doubleday, Doubleday, Page & Co., New York; The Modern Magazine, E. J. Ridgway, publisher, Everybody's Magazine, New York; Advertising, Frank Presbrey, New York; The Relation of Advertiser to Printer and Publisher, Wolstan Dixey, Philadelphia; Trade Journalism, John Clyde Oswald, editor and publisher, American Printer, New York.

DISSENSIONS IN PAPER TRUST.

THE GENERAL PAPER COMPANY, of Milwaukee, Wis., an alleged trust, is threatened with disruption. One company, the Wolf River Paper and Fibre Company, of Shawano, Wis., whose contract for the sale of its product to the company has expired, has announced that it will not renew the contract, and that hereafter it will dispose of its own product. It is understood that other paper mill owners have the same action in view, and the situation has been considered of sufficient importance for the calling of a special meeting of the executive committee of the company.

RECORD PRICES FOR CAXTON AND SHAKESPEARE.

THE enormous rise in the value of incunabula in recent years was illustrated at a sale at Sotheby's on July 6.

A copy of Caxton's "Book of Caton," printed in 1483, was sold to Mr. Quaritch for £1350, ($6750.)

In 1686, according to the New York Times, a copy of this book which belonged to Dr. Bernard was sold for 3s. In 1823 G. Watson Taylor's copy sold for £30 19s. 6d.; the Inglis copy three years later brought £28 17s.; the Wilkes copy, with eight leaves wanting, and some mended, fetched £23 15s., and the Gardner example sold for £81 in 1854. In the last eighteen years only two copies have come under the hammer. In June, 1897, the Earl of Ashburnham's copy brought £295, and another example realized £360 at Sotheby's in February, 1899. The specimen sold on the 6th inst. was in perfect condition and in an almost contemporary ornamental stamped calf binding, probably executed at Oxford. It is perhaps the finest copy of the book in existence, while most of those previously sold were more or less imperfect, but even when this is taken into consideration the difference in the prices is sufficiently striking.

At Sotheby's on the same day the Caxton was sold an almost perfect copy of the first edition of Tyndale's "Pentateuch" was sold. It brought £940, and this volume was also acquired by Quaritch. In 1818 an imperfect example of this book realized £3 4s. at Saunders's salesroom; the Heber copy, wanting twelve leaves, produced £35 in 1834; this was afterward perfected by Mr. Grenville, except for three leaves which were in manuscript; but on obtaining a perfect copy Mr. Grenville parted with the Heber example, which at the Gardner sale, in July, 1854, brought £159. Bishop Daly's copy realized £155 at Sotheby's on June 26, 1858, but this, like the others, was not perfect. Of recent years only one noteworthy copy of this book has come under the hammer, and this was Lord Crawford's, which sold for £255 in June, 1887.

On July 12 there was sold at Sotheby's a perfect copy, consisting of forty-six leaves, of the fourth quarto edition of Shakespeare's "Tragedie of King Richard the Third," 1605. The price, $8750, is higher than any sum previously paid at auction for a Shakespeare quarto.

It is believed that only two other copies of this edition exist. One is in the British Museum, and the other was sold by Mr. Lilly to Mr. Halliwell, afterward Halliwell-Phillipps, and is now in the Bodleian Library at Oxford.

The example just sold at Sotheby's is of peculiar interest from the fact that in five places a contemporary autograph of "Wm. Penn" is found. The signature is probably that of the celebrated admiral, the father of the founder of Pennsylvania.

BOOKS IN DEMAND IN ENGLAND.

THE best-selling books published in England during June, as ascertained by careful inquiry and comparison by the London Book Monthly, are:

The Flute of Pan, by John Oliver Hobbes.
Maid Margaret of Galloway, by S. R. Crockett.
Glenanaar, by Canon Sheehan.
The Friendships of Veronica, by Thomas Cobb.
Who Giveth This Woman? by William Le Queux.
Dorothy Tuke, by Edmund Downey.
Idle Ideas in 1905, by Jerome K. Jerome.
Heretics, by G. K. Chesterton.

PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL.

PUBLISHERS' catalogues for insertion in this year's volume must reach the bindery of J. F. Tapley Co. not later than July 31 in order to insure insertion at the usual schedule rates.

Catalogues received after July 31 can be inserted only on payment of additional charge of $10 to cover cost of insertion after gathering and collating.

Publishers intending to furnish catalogues, but who have not yet signified their intention to do so, are asked to send word at once to the office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, in order that their names may be included in the index to contributors.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

REPRODUCTION OF MUSIC BY MECHANICAL PROCESSES NOT AN INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.

AT the United States Circuit Court at Buffalo, N. Y., on June 23, Judge John R. Hazel, in the suit brought by the White Musical Company to restrain the Apollo Company from reproducing copyright music for mechanical purposes, held that records and perforated paper rolls used in the reproduction of musical compositions are not infringements of the composer's copyright.

OBITUARY NOTES.

PROFESSOR ARTHUR LATHAM PERRY, a well-known writer on economics, died at Williamstown, Mass., July 9. Professor Perry was born in Lyme, N. H., February 27, 1830. He was educated at Williams College, where he was graduated in 1852. Two years later he was elected professor of history and political economy at Williams, and he held the chair for forty years, resigning at the close of 1893 owing to ill health, caused by overwork. He served as pastor of a church in Williamstown in 1875. Professor Perry was best known as the author of "The Elements of Political Economy," a work of which a score of editions have appeared, and which was considered the scientific exposition of the doctrine of free trade, and also of "An Introduction to Political Economy," "Principles of Political Economy," "Origins in Williamstown" and "Williamstown and Williams College." One of his sons is Bliss Perry, editor of The Atlantic Monthly.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

PER LAMM, (Librairie Nilsson,) Paris, has just brought out the annual catalogue of books published in France during 1904, edited by Daniel Jordell, entitled, "Répertoire bibliographique de la librairie française pour l'année 1904." The volume is made up of the twelve monthly lists published during 1904, arranged by subject catchwords, to which is added an alphabetical index. (164 p. 8°.) pr. 50 c.)

JOSEPH BAER & Co., in commemoration of the 120th anniversary of the founding of their firm in Frankfurt-on-the-Main, have issued the first part of a magnificent catalogue of manuscripts and printed books of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, entitled "Handschriften und Drucke des Mittelalters und der Renaissance." The first part presents the titles of thirty-three rare manuscripts of the 11th to the 16th century, and of 474 books, printed from 1450 to 1500. Among the incunabula is a copy of Psalterium Bursfeldense, 1459, the second book printed with a date and the third book brought out by Fust and Schöffer. This copy is priced by the Baers at $24,000. Among the other famous printers represented are Günther Zainer, Erhard Ratdolt, Johannes de Amerbach, Johann Froben, Ulrich Zell, Anton Koberger, Conrad Sweynheym, Arnold Pannartz, Johannes Mentelin, Johannes Zainer, Nicolaus Jenson, and a number of others equally well known. Forty-eight cities are represented. The titles are given lined, and the annotations are scholarly as well as informing. A number of facsimiles and reproductions of illustrations and an index to printers and publishers are also given. The catalogue is well worth a place in the bibliographical library of the librarian and bookseller. (136 p. 4°.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALVIN, TEX.—S. R. Ashby has sold out his book business.

AUSTIN, TEX.—The Capital City Book Co., it is reported, has gone into involuntary bankruptcy.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Grotjan, Lobe & Co., auctioneers, 224 St. Paul Street, will on the 18th inst. offer for sale at public auction the bankrupt stock of the People's Store, Max A. Levy, proprietor, of Frostburg, Md. The stock will be knocked down to the highest bidder, and in all probability the Bankruptcy Court will approve of the sale providing it amounts to within 75 per cent. of the appraised value of the stock, which aggregates about $4500.

BIG RAPIDS, MICH.—A. S. Hobart, R. R. Hobart and A. V. Hobart, having bought the entire interest of H. W. Beecher in the stores of the Hobart-Beecher Co. of this city and Traverse City, Mich., they have formed a new partnership under the name of the Hobart Company and will conduct the business of the two stores as usual, assuming all the liabilities of and collecting all accounts due to the old firm.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Mr. Collins, manager of the book department of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., has resigned his position. The department is run by H. B. Claflin & Co., who expect to put in a new man before the end of the month.

CHICAGO, ILL.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Piser Paris Company, of 150 Fifth Avenue.

DAYTON, O.—W. W. Dodgson, bookseller, has sold out to the Home Circulating Library Company.

DAYTON, O.—John G. Quinius has been appointed superintendent of the bookstore and mail order department of the United Brethren Publishing House, to succeed the Rev. W. G. Clippinger on September 1, when the latter steps into the new place in the faculty of Union Biblical Seminary. Mr. Quinius has held second place in the bookstore for about seven years.

FORT WORTH, TEX.—J. S. Caruthers, bookseller, has been succeeded by Sam Rosen.

JACKSON, MICH.—It is reported that George D. Brown Book Co. is offering 25 cents on the dollar.

KITTANNING, PA.—Madders' bookstore was destroyed by a fire last week.

MONETT, MO.—D. B. Kingrey has opened up a book business here.

NEW YORK CITY.—At the annual meeting of the American Law Book Company, held July 3, the following officers were elected: Charles W. Dumont, president: Homer P. Clark, vice-president; F. E. Wright second vice-president and general counsel; William Mack, secretary, and Henry S. Mott, treasurer.

NEW YORK CITY.—S. F. McLean & Co., 430 Sixth Avenue, are offering their business for sale, the senior member of the firm desiring to give his whole attention to another line of business.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Theatre Magazine Company has been incorporated to print and publish books, magazines, etc. Capital, $30,000. Incorporators: Louis Meyers, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Paul Meyers, 823 West End Avenue; Henry Stern, 314 West 102d Street, and others, all of this city.

NEW YORK CITY.—Walker & Stonestreet, importers and booksellers, have removed from 116 Nassau Street to No. 52 Broadway.

PUEBLO, COL.—Haines' Book Store, on July 1, removed to the location at 418 N. Main Street, formerly occupied by the Foltz-Hardy Company.

SAGINAW, MICH.—The bookstore of E. E. St. John will hereafter be conducted under the style of the J. E. Andrews Company.

SHELBYVILLE, IND.—Levi Bookwalter, who has been in the book and stationery business here since 1870, has retired and will spend the remainder of his days in rest. Mr. Bookwalter is now sixty-seven years old.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—At the annual meeting of the Taber-Prang Art Company, held in Portland, Me., May 27, the directorate of eleven was cut down to nine. Louis Prang, the founder of the business, and John S. Clark were dropped, their interests being purchased by the Springfield stockholders.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Bureau of History and Biography has been incorporated to publish books and magazines. The concern is capitalized at $5000, and the incorporators are Harry E. Stevens, Irene L. Faust and Lucy S. Bahnsen.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

E. W. HALL, formerly representing Charles Scribner's Sons, will in future represent Moffat, Yard & Co.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish immediately "Model of a Motor Car," with a historical sketch and brief description of the working parts, by Hugo Güldner, edited by Theodore E. Schulz. It contains a series of superimposed colored charts, composed of several large and small plates, illustrating all parts of the automobile.

PROFESSOR OTTO HERSCHFELD, the literary executor of the late Theodor Mommsen, has just ready for publication the first volume of the unpublished writings of the historian. It contains sixteen essays on Egyptian and Roman law. Two other volumes will appear, dealing with Roman court procedure, Roman law books, and contributions to the history of Roman law.

JOHN MURRAY, the head of the famous English publishing firm, it is reported, promises to write a book to be entitled "The Calamities of a Publisher, or, Some Authors Diagnosed." Authors diagnosed by a publisher would be a turning of the table, for usually the process goes on the other way about. How necessary the publisher still is we see in the circumstance that while Mr. Murray has not yet written any book, he has edited, or assisted in getting up, some two hundred works.

AN "Account of the Original Bodleian Copy of the First Folio of Shakespeare," by F. Madan, G. M. R. Turbutt, and S. Gibson, is now to be had, including a full description of the volume and its original unrestored binding, and notes on the Droeshout portrait and the true order of the preliminary leaves. There are also seven collotype illustrations. The publication is in style similar to the Clarendon Press facsimile of the First Folio issued in 1902. It can be procured only by application to Mr. Madan at Brasenose College, Oxford, Eng.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish early in the fall a revised edition of "Harper's Book of Facts." This work was first compiled by a staff of scholars and statisticians under the editorship of Charleton T. Lewis, Ph.D., and published about ten years ago. For the past year or two it has been out of print, and the numerous requests for the volume have rendered a new edition advisable. In its new form, the "Book of Facts" will be a classified encyclopædia of every important event from 4004 B.C. to 1905 A.D.—a record of sixty centuries of progress and knowledge in one volume.

THE DARROW PRINTING COMPANY, Chicago, has printed for Richard Carle, the playwright and actor, a booklet entitled "What I Know About Poker." It appears to be a perfectly honest statement, embracing everything one man has been able to learn who has played the game in earnest for some twenty years. The novice who wishes to sound in advance the depths of human credulity will find the pages dealing with "The Bluff" as instructive as any ever written. A two-cent stamp sent to Mr. Carle at the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, will bring the little book, "full house" cover and all. It is certainly well worth the price.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY announce for publication early in September "Paintings of the Louvre," by Dr. Arthur Mahler, a complete handbook of the Italian and Spanish sections of the famous art gallery, sumptuously illustrated. So rich is the Louvre in the masterpieces of Southern Europe that the book is really a history of Italian pictorial art. Dr. Mahler, a well-known authority, follows the works of the Italian painters in the Louvre in historical order—from the early workers in the Byzantine manner to the full glory of Renaissance art. Thorough discussion and ample illustration are given to such varied masters as Fra Angelico and Botticelli, Leonardo and Raphael, Titian and Tintoretto, Veronese and Correggio. The chapter on the Spanish school is, of course, largely devoted to Velasquez and Murillo.

A. S. BARNES & Co. are publishing the third edition of A. Cahan's remarkable novel of revolutionary Russia, "The White Terror and the Red," to which much attention has been directed by the outbreaks in the Black Sea and the revolts in Warsaw, at Kronstadt and elsewhere, the causes of which are so vividly sketched in his dramatic story. They also announce a second edition of "Serena," the first novel of the popular author, Virginia Frazer Boyle; a second edition of "On Tybee Knoll," James B. Connolly's new story recently issued with illustrations by Mrs. Charlotte Weber-Ditzler. They have arranged large Australian editions of "The Wanderers," Henry C. Rowland's successful new novel; "The Sunset Trail," Alfred Henry Lewis's new book of Western fiction; and of George Cary Eggleston's novel, "A Captain in the Ranks."

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY have published "How Christmas Came to the Mulvaneys," a new Cosy Corner volume, by Frances Margaret Fox; "Our Little French Cousin," by Blanche McManus; and "Our Little Korean Cousin," by H. Lee M. Pike in the Little Cousin Series; and a new edition of the illustrated multi-variorum "Omar Khayyám," edited by Nathan Haskell Dole. Mr. Dole's edition of the Rubáiyát has been out of print for several seasons, and is reissued in response to a demand for a de luxe edition of the famous philosopher. The two volumes are a beautiful specimen of book-making, with rubricated title-pages, and seventeen full-page photogravure illustrations, from original drawings by E. H. Garrett and Gilbert James, and from portraits of Fitzgerald and other eminent scholars and authorities on Omar.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers; to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

ISSUED FROM

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Books Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without cost to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $3.00 a year; to foreign countries, $4.00 a year.

The American Catalog (New Series) 1900-1905

Five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3000 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

A second or Supplementary volume to the above will be published in October, giving the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others who want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, uniform, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $12.00.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

Contains the latest catalogues of upward of 200 American publishers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names, with smaller lists at the end of the volume. These lists, all bound in one volume for ready reference, with marginal index guiding the finger at once to the right letter, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the sale or purchase of books. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

By L. FRANK BAUM
Author of
"The Wizard of Oz," etc.

Mother Goose in Prose

Beautifully Illustrated by MAXFIELD PARRISH
8vo, cloth, uniform with "The Wizard of Oz," $1.25

Here are the great little people of the great Mother Goose. At last, thanks to the good Mr. Baum, we learn why King Cole had such queer tastes for a monarch, how Humpty Dumpty happened to be on the wall and Jack Horner in the corner, why Bo-Peep's sheep got away from her, etc. Mr. Parrish's magnificent illustrations are a delight to the eye and a spur to the fancy, so quaint, so imaginative, so beautiful are they.

Father Goose: His Book

Illustrated in colors by W. W. DENSLOW and printed on tinted paper
Quarto, cloth, $1.25

All the little folks will hail this book with joy. The gaiety and jollity of Mr. Baum's rhymes and jingles are equaled by the delicious drollery of Mr. Denslow's pictures.

Old Mother Goose became quite new,
And joined a Woman's Club;
She left poor Father Goose at home
To care for Sis and Bub.

They called for stories by the score,
And laughed and cried to hear
All of the queer and merry songs
That in this book appear.

When Mother Goose at last returned
For her there was no use;
The Goslings much preferred to hear
The tales of Father Goose.

PAM

Orders Are Pouring In

By BETTINA VON HUTTEN

Author of "Our Lady of the Beeches"

PAM was published February 25th.

Its advent was not made a particular demonstration; the advance sales were fair, but they betokened little.

Two weeks after publication re-orders began flocking in. The public "took hold," and to date this is the result:

Seven Editions Exhausted

KELLOGG'S AMERICAN INSECTS

By VERNON L. KELLOGG. (Ready August 1st) With 812 figures and 11 colored plates 647 pp. $5.00 net (postage extra).

This sumptuous volume covers the entire American insect world, including moths, butterflies and beetles, to which separate volumes are often devoted. Written in a style to interest the general reader, the arrangement is systematic and reasoned, and it is probably the most valuable handbook of the subject for the technical student or amateur collector. Habits, life, history, relations to man, to other animals and to plants are given special prominence. It is distinguished by much new matter, the results of the author's ingenious observations, and by many original pictures illustrating species not before figured in general insect books.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just added to their Caxton thin paper series, "The Poems of Gray and Collins." The practical limp leather binding; the thin, but not transparent paper; the clear type and convenient shape of these books, make them particularly attractive. There are many poems of Thomas Gray which are little known but well worth knowing, and many of William Collins's verses that are entirely unknown to the general public, so that this work has all the freshness of a new volume of verse with a few old friends in it here and there, to make the reader feel at home.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish at once a work on the "Government Regulation of Railway Rates," by Professor Hugo Richard Meyer, of the University of Chicago, who points out the respective advantages and disadvantages of the two opposing policies—the foreign policy of equality of charges for equal services, and the American policy of charging what the traffic will bear. Professor Meyer's sources are authoritative, his details are explicit, and his statements are clear and concise. They will also publish this month a compact volume on "Norway and Sweden," by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the famous arctic explorer, who has taken an active part in the recent movement in Scandinavia which resulted in the separation of Norway and Sweden. Dr. Nansen's object is to give a concise and authentic account of the circumstances and events which led up to the present crisis. The two final lines of the book are noteworthy: "Any union in which the one people is restrained in exercising its freedom is and will remain a danger." Volume VII. of the edition of "The Prose Works of Jonathan Swift, D.D., edited by Temple Scott, containing the 'Historical and Political Tracts—Irish,'" is just ready. It will be welcome news to the owners of the volumes of this edition to know that of the two volumes that have not yet appeared, Vols. XI. and XII., both are so far under way that their publication may be looked for during the present year.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. will publish on September 7 an interesting contribution to the literature of the race problem in Charles W. Chesnutt's novel, "The Colonel's Dream," in which is told the story of a man born in the South, who has made a fortune in New York and returns to his old home to live. He speedily finds himself involved in an ever-complicating set of circumstances, owing to the conflict of his feeling for the negroes with that of the community; and this culminates in one final dastardly outrage that convinces him he cannot live in the South. On the same date will be published H. Rider Haggard's new story, "Ayesha," which, the author claims, is not a sequel to "She," but a conclusion to that remarkable novel. Holly, and his ward, Leo Vincey, are carried through a series of hair-raising adventures in the mountains of Central Asia in quest of the ever-elusive re-incarnated queen. How their route to her was blocked by the jealousy of a rival princess, how they conquered difficulties, natural and supernatural alike, and reached the goal they sought, is described by Mr. Haggard with all of his old-time vigor. They will also bring out in September "The Jewish Spectre," by George H. Warner, a study of the Jew of history and of to-day. The author shows that the rest of the world has built up a wholly imaginary "spectre" which it has labeled the Jew, and which one generation has passed on with additions to the next. What the Jew really was and is, his contribution to civilization, and the larger idea of universal brotherhood which Mr. Warner holds is the basis of true religion—these ideas are advanced with surprising clearness, humor and effectiveness.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. A story of the occult. An Englishman and his daughter, both deeply interested in Eastern mysticism, are present one night at an incantation in which an Egyptian medium brings to life the spirit of the Englishman's dead wife. The apparition, at once recognizable, quickly changes to a creature of horrible features and the girl realizes that some evil spirit has entered into her. Her father dies from the shock of the apparition and the girl, haunted by this evil spirit, returns to London and soon becomes engaged to a sane, wholesome Englishman. Later she comes under the occult influence of a man whom she and her father had known in Egypt and whose part in her life is only terminated by tragic means.

The thought is from Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus" that individuality and distinction rests in clothes. A great storm is supposed to sweep over present-day political and social London which carries off all clothes, furniture, etc. and thus removes all social distinctions and all recognition of friends and acquaintances. The author is acute and scathing in his remarks on the falseness, superficiality and heartlessness of present day society. A very aristocratic earl and a typical modern woman are chief speakers and point the moral at the end of this dream.

An enthusiastic, poetic young Englishman devoid of all conventionality finds himself in the highly conventional Italy of the eighteenth century. He is Quixotic in his devotion to women and utterly tactless, always putting himself in the wrong and spending his time in regrets and doing penance. Honor, religion and love are his fetiches and the leaden feet of his idols show among the capuchins of the Italian cities and the trading Jews. The language is sometimes rather too unconventional also. To be "naked and not ashamed" is the gist of the author's story of human nature and art.

Swinburne, Algernon C: Love's cross currents: a year's letters. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [Jl.] 8+245 p. D. cl., †$1.50.
Theodore Watts-Dunton unearthed this "bantling" of the poet's youth. A prologue gives a short history of three related families. Then the story is told in letters, the most brilliant of which are from an old English matron who keeps her sons, daughters-in-law and grandchildren well in hand. There are many "skeletons" in the closets of these people related by law and some epigrammatic wit about the manners and ways of English society.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 22, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

TIME WASTED IN SELLING.

IT has perhaps rarely occurred to the retail dealer who failed to keep his appointment with a commercial traveller that by his negligence or carelessness he became directly responsible for a certain increase in the cost of the goods he handles. It matters little whether the traveller was disappointed through the carelessness or thoughtlessness of the customer, or because of a good and sufficient reason—the effect upon his business is the same. Every merchant is aware of the fact that the cost of selling goods is included by the manufacturer in the selling price, and that the buyers must pay it.

A good buyer, and by good we mean a businesslike one, never keeps a salesman waiting. These are chiefly the men in the big houses, where the value of time is recognized and every minute is made to count. Unfortunately, these houses are in the minority, and hence, as has been calculated by experts, every salesman on the road loses on an average of two and a half hours each day by being kept waiting, for some reason or other, in most cases, however, without necessity. As there are upwards of 100,000 salesmen on the road the year round, at an average cost of $10 a day for salary, simmissions, expenses, etc., the valume of the time lost is at least $250,000 a day, $1,500,000 a week and $75,000,000 a year—a tax of about a dollar a head on the entire population of the United States. In the book business it would add upwards of $100 to the expense of selling every new work as it is brought out. In the stationery lines the figures would be doubled if not trebled. This enormous sum must be and is paid by the buyers and they get absolutely nothing for it. If the lessons taught by these figures teach nothing else, they certainly ought to illustrate the value of another's man's time.

As we have pointed out on several occasions, disappointing a traveller in any way hurts the offender alone. As stated above, he must directly bear his share of the increased cost on his goods made necessary by waste through the loss of time; on the other hand, his discourteous and inconsiderate treatment of the traveller will bring discredit on his business capacity, and through it he will also lose many favors and much information that would help to swell his profit account. No traveller, whether his goods are desired or not, should be considered an intruder. He is an advance agent of commerce, who rubs up against many men in many places, and therefore, if properly treated, can give out—and as a rule he gives it out, willingly and freely—much information that will contribute to the education of the man who is obliged to remain stationary. The old-time peddler was ever a welcome guest at the fireside of his customers; the descendants of many such customers owed their first lift in life to the advance agent of commerce. It were a wise policy, to say the least, for the retailer to extend to the commercial travellers the same courtesy which he expects and gets from them.

IN writing last week of the decisions of Judge Ray we had before us in full only the Scribner decision, the Bobbs-Merrill decision having been at that time but imperfectly reported. The Bobbs-Merrill decision goes somewhat further and states, though as an obiter dictum, that the complainant is seeking to enforce "an unlawful combination agreement." This opinion is based upon the five purposes of the combination as stated by Judge Ray, the first of which is "to fix the retail price of books." Now this first premise is an entirely mistaken one, for, as has again and again been pointed out, the American Publishers' Association does not fix the retail price of any book, but leaves that to be determined absolutely by the copyright owner, who has an undoubted right so to do. The purpose of the combination is "to maintain such retail price" as may be fixed on copyright books, not by the combination but by the individual publisher, and it is the distinction here indicated, in all probability, which makes the legal distinction between a lawful and an unlawful combination. On this point it would seem from previous decisions that the circuit judge is likely to be overruled on appeal. The decision is, however, a most important contribution to the general subject of copyright and contractual relations, and we therefore give it in full in this issue.

DECISION IN THE BOBBS-MERRILL SUIT VS. MACY'S.

We give in full below the decision of Judge Ray, of the United States Circuit Court, in the suit of the Bobbs-Merrill Company vs. R. H. Macy & Co.:

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.

The Bobbs-Merrill Company,
Complainant,
v.
Isidor Straus and Nathan Straus, co-partners under the firm name of R. H. Macy & Co.,
Defendants.

Suit in equity to enjoin the sale at retail of books containing a copyright novel, "The Castaway," at a price less than one dollar for each copy of the book. Such sales of such book are alleged to be in violation of the terms of a notice printed in each copy thereof upon the page immediately following the title-page and immediately below the statutory copyright notice.

Defendants insist that the books containing such novel having been lawfully printed for sale to the general public and to be read by the general public and put upon the market and sold that the right of the owners of such books to sell same at such price as they, severally, may see fit to ask, cannot be and is not limited or affected by the notice. They also insist that this suit is to enforce an unlawful combination and agreement and press other defenses.

Boardman, Platt & Soley, with
W. H. H. Miller, Albert B. Boardman and Henry W. Clark, of Counsel for Complainant.
Spiegelberg & Wise, with
John G. Carlisle and Edmond E. Wise, of Counsel for defendants.

RAY, District Judge.

The main facts in this case are not disputed. They may be stated as follows:

The opinion then, as a statement of the facts, copies the two stipulations as to facts at pages 8 and 9, and 62 to 89 of the record, including all exhibits, in full.

From these facts, which are conceded, it appears that the original purpose of the combination and agreement of the association of publishers, including the complainant, was (1) to maintain the net retail price of all copyrighted books published by the members of such association, or any of them, at such price per book as might be fixed by the publisher of that book, and (2) to prevent the sale at retail of any one or more of such copyrighted books by any dealer in books at retail at a less price per copy than that so fixed. (See finding 10.) Thereupon the persons, firms and corporations in the combination, including the complainant, formed a corporation under the name American Publishers' Association. This corporation included a large majority of all the publishers of all books, both copyrighted and uncopyrighted, in the United States. This corporation immediately on its organization adopted the resolution, Exhibit A, and it and its members entered into an agreement with each other and combined together to do the acts and things and refrain from doing the acts and things mentioned in such resolution, Exhibit A.

That subdivision or paragraph III thereof was illegal and in restraint of interstate commerce is perfectly plain. (See finding 22.) In fact the effect of the decision of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York quoted in the findings (finding 15) is so to declare. By paragraph or subdivision X of such resolution the combination to keep up the price of books and limit and restrain interstate commerce was to be further extended. Thereupon the American Booksellers' Association was formed. (See finding 12.) That the object and purpose as there set forth was illegal cannot be doubted. We now have the combination extended to at least ninety per cent. of the booksellers of the United States and including not only ninety per cent. of all publishers but ninety per cent. of all publishers of books. The combination as existing under those resolutions, etc., is not confined to publishers and sellers of copyright books, but includes the publishers and sellers of all books. The declared object and purpose of this combination is (1) to fix the retail price of books; (2) to maintain such retail price; (3) to refuse to furnish or sell any books to any dealer in books who does not maintain such prices, that is, who sells a book at less than the fixed price; (4) to compel all publishers and dealers in books, in practical effect at least, to come into the combination and enforce and maintain these prices or be blacklisted and driven from the business; (5) to drive out of the business of general publishing and bookselling all who refuse or neglect to maintain these prices. The freedom of the owner of a book, any book, (except those specially excepted,) duly purchased and paid for, to sell the same, soiled or injured or read and no longer desired, was thus attempted to be destroyed. The right of a retail bookseller to sell to the purchaser of fifty books for his library at a less price than to the purchaser of one book must not be exercised under the pain and penalty of having his supply of books cut off and of being driven from the business and financially ruined. (See Exhibit B, finding 12.) As to what was done in restraint of interstate commerce see finding 13.

An attempt was then made by the American Publishers' Association to eliminate the vicious provision of the written agreements and resolutions adopted by the combination by the substitution of article or subdivision III of Exhibit H. (See finding 16.) This must be read with the words included in brackets left out. The American Booksellers' Association followed with the adoption of Exhibit I, or "Reform Resolution No. 2." In finding 17 is set out what was done up to April, 1904. What has been done by the combination since April, 1904, is set out in finding 18. As appears from finding 19 the defendants were put on the so-called cut-off or blacklist in May, 1901, when the unmodified agreement or combination was being enforced. Its offense was in refusing to maintain the retail price of a copyright book however. Defendants' name has not been taken from the list at any time. It is found and conceded that the complainant is living up to and enforcing the agreements, rules and regulations aforesaid, as modified of course, and has published and is publishing all its books, including "The Castaway" because thereof and in accordance and compliance therewith. It follows necessarily from the facts recited from 1 to 23, inclusive, and is found as a further fact, that the notice in "The Castaway" on the page following the fly leaf, viz: "The price of this book at retail is one dollar net. No dealer is licensed to sell it at a less price, and a sale at a less price will be treated as an infringement of the copyright. The Bobbs-Merrill Company" is an act done by the complainant acting in combination with the said American Publishers' Association and the American Booksellers' Association and the members thereof in execution of the said combination and agreement and for the purpose of enforcing same, and because of the said combination and agreement as evidenced by the acts of and the resolutions and rules adopted and made by such associations and agreed to and being executed by the members of said association, including this complainant. It also follows and is found as a fact that such notice was put in such books and that its enforcement as an alleged license agreement is attempted, by means of this action, not because the complainant reserved or intended to reserve to itself any interest in said books containing such printed notices, nor because it merely licensed or intended to license the purchasers thereof who purchased same in the first instance from the complainant, to use or sell such books in a certain way or on certain terms and conditions, or at certain prices, but as an attempt by complainant, as a member of said American Publishers' Association, to enforce as against this defendant the rules of such associations and combination fixing prices, in an effort to maintain them. It is part of a scheme and the right of the complainant to maintain this action depends on the validity of that scheme or combination. Is such notice in such books sufficiently explicit in its terms to constitute a license agreement or contract or any restriction on or modification of the absolute title thereto in the defendant? It does not purport to reserve to the complainant any interest in the book, or any right to control it or the action of its owner in his use and disposition of it except by possible inference.

In Heaton Peninsular Button-Fastener Co. v. Eureka Specialty Co., et al., 77 Fed. Rep. 288, the owner of a patent for fastening buttons to shoes with metallic fasteners made and sold the machines with this notice on a metal plate so conspicuously fastened thereto that all must see it, and so securely fastened as to constitute substantially an integral part of the machine, viz: "Condition of Sale. This machine is sold and purchased to use only with fasteners made by the Peninsular Novelty Company, to whom the title to said machine immediately reverts upon violation of this contract of sale."

Here is a plain unequivocal statement, one that cannot be misconstrued or misunderstood, that there is a condition attached to the sale, viz: that the machine is to be used with fasteners of a certain make only and that a use with other fasteners will be such a violation of the agreement as to defeat the title or right given. This was seen by the purchaser, and he took the machine on that condition and by so doing agreed to the condition and became bound thereby. He became a mere licensee. He acquired the right to use that machine in a certain way only.

In Cortelyou and another and Neostyle Company v. Charles Eneu Johnson & Co., recently decided by this Court, but not yet reported, the patented Rotary Neostyle was sold with this notice on a metal plate firmly and conspicuously attached thereto, viz: "License Agreement. This machine is sold by the Neostyle Company and purchased by the user with the express understanding that it is licensed to be used only with stencil paper and ink (both of which are patented), made by the Neostyle Company, New York City." When the purchaser took this machine he assented to this condition and became bound by it and became a licensee. He is told that he is licensed to use the machine in a certain way and with certain supplies only. Had he been licensed to sell only, that is, made an agent to sell, and empowered to sell at a certain fixed price only it is unquestionably true that had he violated the agreement by selling at a lower or even a higher price he could have been enjoined. Having the sole power to vend his patented articles he would undoubtedly have the right to fix the price at which they should be sold and stop sales made by his agents and licensees in violation of the authority conferred. This is now settled as to a patent right.

Bement v. National Harrow Co., 186 U. S., 70, 88, 92, 93.

In the opinion in that case, pp. 92-93, we find the following:

"The contracts plainly look to the sale, and they also determine the price of the article sold, throughout the United States, as well as to the manufacture in the State of Michigan. As these contracts do, therefore, include interstate commerce within their provisions, we are brought back to the question whether the agreement between these parties with relation to these patented articles is valid within the act of Congress. It is true that it has been held by this court that the act included any restraint of commerce, whether reasonable or unreasonable. United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Association, 166 U. S. 290; United States v. Joint Traffic Association, 171 U. S. 505; Addystone Pipe, etc., Company v. United States, 175 U. S. 211. But that statute clearly does not refer to that kind of a restraint of interstate commerce which may arise from reasonable and legal conditions imposed upon the assignee or licensee of a patent by the owner thereof, restricting the terms upon which the article may be used and the price to be demanded therefor. . . . The provision in regard to the price at which the licensee would sell the article manufactured under the license was also an appropriate and reasonable condition. It tended to keep up the price of the implements manufactured and sold, but that was only recognizing the nature of the property dealt in, and providing for its value so far as possible. This the parties were legally entitled to do. The owner of a patented article can, of course, charge such price as he may choose, and the owner of a patent may assign it or sell the right to manufacture and sell the article patented upon the condition that the assignee shall charge a certain amount for such article."

In Victor Talking Machine et al., v. The Fair, 123 Fed. Rep., 424, (C. C. A.) the syllabus reads:

"The owner of a patent who manufactures and sells the patented article may reserve to himself, as an ungranted part of his monopoly, the right to fix and control the prices at which jobbers or dealers buying from him may sell to the public, and a dealer who buys from a jobber with knowledge of such reservation, and resells in violation of it, is an infringer of the patent."

And in the opinion, after stating that the grant of a patent by its terms covers three separate or separable fields, the learned Judge giving the opinion says:

"The field of sale is as much within the monopoly as the others, and so it has been decided. Bement v. National Harrow Co., 186 U. S. 70, 22 Sup. vt. 747, 46 L. Ed. 1058. And in Edison Phonograph Co. v. Kaufman (C. C.) 105 Fed. 960, and Same v. Pike (C. C.) 116 Fed. 863, the holdings were that a patentee may reserve to himself as an ungranted part of his monopoly of sale the right to fix and control the prices at which jobbers and dealers may sell the patented article to the public, and that whoever without permission enters the reserved portion is an infringer."

In the Victor Talking Machine case, supra, the notice affixed to the machine read: "Notice. This machine, which is registered in our book No. —, is licensed by us for sale and use only when sold to the public at a price not less than $—. No license is granted to use this machine when sold at a less price. . . . A purchase is an acceptance of these conditions. All rights revert to the undersigned in the event of any violation. Victor Talking Machine Co."

In the Edison Phonograph Company cases, cited (see supra) by Judge Baker in the Victor Talking Machine case (supra), there was a restrictive contract and this was referred to in the following language by a notice on the box containing the instrument when sold, viz: "Notice to Dealers: This record is sold subject to restrictions as to the persons to whom and the prices at which it may be sold. Any violation of such restrictions makes the seller or user an infringer of the Edison Patents." A reference to the case in 116 Fed. Rep. 863 will show that the restriction was very clear and explicit. The notice in "The Castaway" does not suggest a restriction upon the title to the book; that the persons or persons taking the book for sale is obtaining anything short of an absolute title and no one would suppose that the publisher of the book would attempt or assume to fix the price at which dealers should sell after obtaining absolute title to the book from such publisher. The words "No dealer is licensed to sell it at a less price" is notice that licensees not absolute owners are so restricted. The words "and a sale at a less price" will be treated as an infringement of the copyright clearly does not even tend to make such a sale by an absolute owner of such books an infringement of the copyright.

It is a close question whether a copyright may be infringed by selling in violation of express and explicit restrictions placed on the dealer, expressly made an agent or licensee only, as to the mode of sale or the price at which same is to be sold.

The Act of March 3, 1891 (26 St. L. 1106), entitled "An act to amend title sixty, chapter three of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to copyrights" amends section 4952 so as to read "The author . . . or proprietor of any book . . . shall, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter have the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, copying, executing, finishing, and vending the same." Section seven of that act amends section 4964 of the Revised Statutes so as to read as follows:

"Every person, who after the recording of the title of any book and the depositing of two copies of such book as provided by this act, shall, contrary to the provisions of this act, within the term limited, and without the consent of the proprietor of the copyright first obtained in writing, signed in the presence of two or more witnesses, print, publish, dramatize, translate, or import, or knowing the same to be so printed, published, dramatized, translated, or imported, shall sell or expose to sale any copy of such book, shall forfeit every copy thereof to such proprietor, and shall also forfeit and pay such damages as may be recovered in a civil action by such proprietor in any court of competent jurisdiction."

This section declares what acts constitute a violation of the copyright of a book. It declares that to constitute a violation of the copyright the offender must have within the term limited, that is, the life of the copyright, and without the consent of the proprietor thereof, first obtained in writing and executed in the presence of two or more witnesses, printed or published or imported, contrary to the provisions of the act, such copyrighted book, or contrary to the provisions of the act within such time and without such consent must have sold or exposed to sale a copy of such copyrighted book known to have been illegally printed. In substance this section declares that it is an infringement of a copyright to print or publish the copyrighted and without the consent of the proprietor given in writing signed in the presence of two witnesses, or to import a copy of such book without such consent, or knowingly to sell or expose for sale a copy or copies of such copyrighted book when unlawfully printed or imported. From this it would appear that an infringement by the sale of a copyrighted book consists in the selling or exposing for sale of a copy of such book that has been unlawfully printed or imported. If this be the law it is not an infringement of a copyright to sell or expose for sale a copy or copies of such book when the same was lawfully printed or lawfully imported. The result would be that it is not an infringement of the copyright of a book to sell a copy or copies thereof lawfully printed, as in this case, in violation of a mere condition imposed upon a dealer by the publisher by which such dealer agrees not to sell below a certain price, the title to the book having been vested in such dealer by the publisher thereof or even in cases where the absolute title had not passed to the dealer. If the publisher of the book being the proprietor of the copyright, parts with the title to such book, either a single or any number of copies, and receives his pay therefor, he has voluntarily parted with all control over that or those particular books. The owner of those books is neither a licensee nor an agent. He has the absolute property therein and the absolute ownership of an article of personal property carries with it the right to give away or sell for such consideration as the owner sees fit to impose, prescribe or demand so long as he violates no law. This view of the copyright laws of the United States, as amended by the Act of March 3, 1891, seems to be taken by Macgillivray in his work on the Law of Copyright, Chap. 4, Sec. 2, page 287. He there says:

"Prohibited Acts and Remedies: It is an infringement, subject to the remedies stated below, to do any of the following acts in respect of a copyrighted work. In the case of: 1, Books; without the consent of the proprietor in writing signed in the presence of two witnesses, 1, to print or publish. 2, To dramatize or translate. 3, To import. 4. Knowingly to sell or expose for sale copies unlawfully made or imported."

We find no suggestion that it is an infringement of the copyright of a book for the owner of the book to sell copies at a price which violates a valid contract between the publisher of the book and the dealer and which was made at the time such dealer became the owner.

In Harrison v. Maynard, Merrill & Co., (C. C. A 2d Circuit), 26 U. S. App. 99; 61 Fed. Rep. 689, the complainants, publishers of books and the owners of a copyrighted book, sent a quantity of the printed and unbound sheets of such book to the bindery of one Alexander for binding and such sheets were to be stored until complainants should order bound copies. Sometimes they bound copies in advance. A fire occurred in the bindery and both complainants and Alexander supposed the commercial value as books of all such bound or unbound sheets of such book in such bindery was destroyed. On examination complainants' agents so reported. Thereupon, Alexander, without objection from complainant sold the entire debris to one Fitzgerald, who without moving it sold same to some dealers in old paper. Alexander imposed no restriction or condition when he sold. Fitzgerald, who had become the owner of the debris including the printed sheets and bound volumes, put this condition and restriction in the bill of sale: "It is understood that all paper taken out of the building is to be utilized as paper stock, and all books to be sold as paper stock only, and not placed on the market as anything else." Harrison, a dealer in books, visited the place and purchased of these dealers in old paper some of the volumes of the copyrighted book not destroyed and put them on the market. He had no notice of the restriction or condition put in the bill of sale given by Fitzgerald. Complainants, owners of the copyright, brought suit to enjoin such sale by Harrison. On these facts the Court, Wallace, Lacombe and Shipman, held that so long as the owner of a copyright retains the title to the copies of the book which he has the exclusive right to vend by virtue of the copyright, he can impose restrictions upon the manner in which and upon the persons to whom the copies can be sold. They also held that if the agents of the owner of the copyright intrusted with the possession of such books violates his instructions and fraudulently sells to a person who has knowledge of the restrictions, such sale by the agent constitutes a fraud upon the owner of the copyright and that such fraud constitutes an infringement of the copyright with which the owner has never parted, and that such fraud, meaning of course such sales can be restricted by virtue of the statutes applicable thereto. The Court states that this right to enjoy the benefit of the copyright statutes results from the fact that the owner has never parted with the title to the book or the copyright, although he may have parted with the possession of the book. The Court also holds that the right to restrain the sale of a particular copy of the book by virtue of such statutes has gone when the owner of the copyright and of that copy has parted with all his title to it, and has conferred an absolute title to the copy upon a purchaser although with an agreement for a restricted use. If this is true of one particular book it is also true of a large number of copies. The Court also says, in substance, that the new purchaser cannot reprint the copy, but that the copy having been absolutely sold to him the ordinary incidents of ownership in personal property, among which is the right of alienation, attaches to it. The Court further says, "If he has agreed that he will not sell it for certain purposes, or to certain persons, and violates his agreement and sells to an innocent purchaser, he can be punished for a violation of his agreement, but neither is guilty under the copyright statutes of an infringement. If the new purchaser participates in the fraud he may also share in the punishment." The Court cites in support of these statements, Clemens v. Estes, 22 Fed. Rep. 899.

If this be a correct statement of the law, and this Court does not doubt that it is, we recur to the simple proposition whether or not the complainant in the case now under consideration, The Bobbs-Merrill Company, retained any title in the books in question by printing on the page following the title page the statement: "Copyright, 1904. The Bobbs-Merrill Company. May." And thereunder the statement: "The price of this book at retail is one dollar net. No dealer is licensed to sell it at a less price, and a sale at a less price will be treated as an infringement of the copyright. The Bobbs-Merrill Company."

The defendants in this case purchased ninety per cent. of its copies of this book from dealers at wholesale at a reduction of forty per cent. from said mentioned retail price. The other ten per cent. of their copies they purchased at retail paying the full retail price therefor. The defendants knew of the statement printed in said books above quoted, and knew that it was printed in each copy of the book. The wholesale dealers from whom the defendants purchased their copies obtained such copies either from complainants direct or from other wholesale dealers at a discount from the above mentioned retail price. Such wholesale dealers knew that the book was copyrighted and were familiar with the said statement printed in each copy thereof. The books that came to the defendants prior to reaching them did not pass through the hands of any person or persons who were ignorant of the said notice printed therein. It is expressly found, however, and conceded that these wholesale dealers from whom the defendants here obtained their copies were under no agreement or obligation to enforce the observance of the terms of said notice by retail dealers, or to restrict their sales of copies of such book to retail dealers who would agree to observe the said notice.

As has been stated, the notice contains no suggestion that the title of the purchaser to the book is in any way limited. The notice is that the price of the book at retail is one dollar net and if the words "no dealer" are to be construed as referring solely to retail dealers then the notice is that the Bobbs-Merrill Company has not licensed any retail dealer to sell the book at retail for less than one dollar per copy. The fair meaning of this is that in cases where the Bobbs-Merrill Company has granted a license to some retail dealer or dealers to sell the book such licensee or licensees is limited and restricted in his or their authority, but the notice is not a suggestion or an intimation to any person that those who buy and pay for the book in the open market, or even of the Bobbs-Merrill Company, without entering into an express license agreement different from that suggested by this notice are bound or obligated in any way to demand one dollar per copy for such book. It well may be that the Bobbs-Merrill Company has licensed or will license certain dealers to sell this book, and when it grants a license it has the right to impose conditions on its licensees, but this notice does not state or suggest that every purchaser of one of these books containing this notice becomes a licensee with a limited title, or in fact, no title to the book. A person cannot be both licensee and absolute owner. Again, it is contended that the words "The price of this book" refers to the particular copy containing the notice, and that the words "no dealer is licensed to sell it" refers to the particular copy containing the notice. It is further contended that the Court is bound to give this construction to this language, and that therefore the defendants having knowledge of the notice assented to the proposition and in effect entered into a contract or agreement with the Bobbs-Merrill Company whereby they became its agents to sell the copies at one dollar per volume and no less, or its licensee with power to sell such books for which it had paid the wholesale dealer the price demanded at one dollar per copy only. This Court refuses to give that construction to this notice. This Court declines to hold that the words in such notice "this book" and "it" refer to the particular copy of the book in which the notice is found. The language of the notice is a general statement referring to the book known as "The Castaway" generally and not to any particular copy or copies thereof, and, at best, is but a notice that licensees of the publishers are only at liberty to sell such book at one dollar per copy. The notice forms no part of a contract between the purchaser from the publisher and such publisher, nor does it limit or restrict the title of the purchaser. And this Court will say here that it would be lending itself to the perpetuation of a fraud upon the public should it hold differently. If the Bobbs-Merrill Company in putting its books upon the market, desires to say to wholesalers and to retailers that it is not selling the entire title to the copies put upon the market, let it say so in plain and unambiguous terms. Let it say in its notice that the purchaser of copies of the book from either the publisher or any wholesale or retail dealer is obtaining but a limited or qualified title in the copies purchased, or that in purchasing one or more copies such publisher becomes but a mere licensee of the publisher without title to the copies and with power to dispose of the same only on receiving a specified sum of money. The Circuit Court of Appeals in Harrison v. Maynard, Merrill & Co., supra, also quotes with approval the language of Judge Hammond in Henry Bill Publishing Co. v. Smythe, 27 Fed. Rep. 914-925, viz:

"The owner of the copyright may not be able to transfer the entire property in one of his copies and retain for himself an incidental power to authorize a sale of that copy, or, rather, the power of prohibition in the owner that he shall not sell it, holding that much as a modicum of his former estate, to be protected by the copyright statute; and yet he may be entirely able, so long as he retains the ownership of a particular copy for himself, to find abundant protection under the copyright statute for his then incidental power of controlling the sale. This copyright incident of control over the sale, if I may call it so, as contradistinguished from the power of sale incident to ownership in all property—copyrighted articles, like any other—is a thing that belongs alone to the owner of the copyright itself, and as to him only so long as and to the extent that he owns the particular copies involved. Whenever he parts with that ownership, the ordinary incident of alienation attaches to the particular copy parted with in favor of the transferree, and he cannot be deprived of it. This latter incident supersedes the other—swallows it up, so to speak—and the two cannot coexist in any owner of the copy except he be the owner at the same time of the copyright; and, in the nature of the thing, they cannot be separated so that one may remain in the owner of the copyright as a limitation upon or denial of the other in the owner of the copy."

In Garst v. Hall & Lyon Co., 179 Mass., 588, decided October 17, 1901, without dissent, the Court, speaking of copyrights, said:

"The law of copyright also gives privileges to authors and publishers that do not pertain to property which anybody may make and sell if he can; but even under the law of copyright, when the owner of a copyright and of a particular copy of a book to which it pertains, has parted with all his title to the book, and has conferred an absolute title to it upon a purchaser, he cannot restrict the right of alienation, which is one of the incidents of ownership in personal property. Harrison v. Maynard, 61 Fed. Rep., 689. See also Clemens v. Estes, 22 Fed. Rep., 899; Meyer v. Estes, 164 Mass. 457; Waterman Co. v. Waterman, 27 App. Div. (N. Y.) 133."

The same doctrine is plainly expressed in Keeler v. Standard Folding Bed Company, 157 U. S. 659. In that case it was held that one who purchases patented articles of manufacture from one authorized to sell them at the place where sold becomes possessed of an absolute property in such articles, unrestricted in time or place. In that case the complainants were the assignees for the State of Massachusetts of certain letters patent granted to one Welch. This assignment as matter of course gave to the complainants the rights of the patentee in and for the State of Massachusetts, viz: the sole right to make, use and sell the patented article in that State. The Welch Folding Bed Company owned the patent rights for the State of Michigan, and it of course had the same right to make, use and vend the patented article in that State. The defendants purchased a carload of the patented articles from the Welch Folding Bed Company at Grand Rapids in the State of Michigan. It proposed to sell these articles in the State of Massachusetts, and thereafter did sell some of such articles in the State of Massachusetts, and was engaged in selling the remainder in that State at the city of Boston when the bill of complaint was filed. The Supreme Court held that the defendants having purchased the patented articles in Michigan from the assignee of the patent for the territory included within the boundaries of the State of Michigan had the right to sell them anywhere within the United States, including the State of Massachusetts, notwithstanding the fact that all the patent rights for the State of Massachusetts had been assigned to another person, to wit, to the complainants. The decision is based upon the propositions that where the patentee not having parted with his rights granted by the patent, makes and vends a patented article, the purchaser can use the article in any part of the United States, and unless restrained by contract with the patentee can sell or dispose of the same in any part of the United States. The Court says: "It has passed outside of the monopoly, and is no longer under the peculiar protection granted to patented rights." The Court approves the language of Mr. Justice Clifford in Goodyear v. Beverly Rubber Co., 1 Clifford, 348-354, wherein he states, in substance, that the patentee having manufactured the article and sold it for a satisfactory compensation, the patentee, so far as that quantity of the product of his invention is concerned, has enjoyed all the rights secured to him by his letters patent, and the manufactured article, and the material of which it is composed, go to the purchaser for a valuable consideration, discharged of all the rights of the patentee previously attached to or impressed upon it by the law under which the patent was granted. The Court further says: "If, as is often the case, the patentee has divided the territory of the United States into twenty or more specified parts, must a person who has bought and paid for the patented article in one part, from a vendor having an exclusive right to make and vend therein, on removing from one part of the country to another, pay to the local assignee for the privilege of using and selling his property, or else be subjected to an action for damages as a wrongdoer? And is there any solid distinction to be made, in such a case, between the right to use and the right to sell?" The Court then cites with approval several cases and especially the language of Mr. Justice Clifford in Mitchell v. Hawley, 16 Wall. 544, 546, 547, as follows:

"Patentees acquire by their letters patent the exclusive right to make and use their patented inventions and to vend to others to be used for the period of time specified in the patent, but when they have made one or more of the things patented, and have vended the same to others to be used, they have parted to that extent with their exclusive patented machine, and consequently a patentee, when he has himself constructed a machine and sold it without conditions, or authorized another to construct, sell, and deliver it, or to construct, use, and operate it, without any conditions, and the consideration has been paid to him for the thing patented, the rule is well established that the patentee must be understood to have parted to that extent with all his exclusive right, and that he ceases to have any interest whatever in the patented machine so sold and delivered or authorized to be constructed and operated. Where such circumstances appear, the owner of the machine, whether he built it or purchased it, if he has also acquired the right to use and operate it during the lifetime of the patent, may continue to use it until it is worn out, in spite of any and every extension subsequently obtained by the patentee or his assigns."

At page 666 the Court calls attention to the case of Wilson v. Rousseau, 4 How., 646, and says that it was there held that "As between the owner of a patent on the one side, and a purchaser of an article made under the patent on the other, the payment of a royalty once, or, what is the same thing, the purchase of the article from one authorized by the patentee to sell it, emancipates such article from any further subjection to the patent throughout the entire life of the patent, even if the latter should be by law subsequently extended beyond the term existing at the time of the sale, and that in respect of the time of enjoyment, by those decisions the right of the purchaser, his assigns or legal representatives, is clearly established to be entirely free from any further claim of the patentee or any assignee."

The Court then says:

"Upon the doctrine of these cases we think it follows that one who buys patented articles of manufacture from one authorized to sell them becomes possessed of an absolute property in such articles, unrestricted in time or place. Whether a patentee may protect himself and his assignees by special contracts brought home to the purchasers is not a question before us, and upon which we express no opinion. It is, however, obvious that such a question would arise as a question of contract, and not as one under the inherent meaning and effect of the patent laws."

In the case now before this Court it appears that the publisher of the book "The Castaway" printed and sold these copies. It put them upon the market. It received its price therefor and reserved no right to demand any further compensation. The defendants purchased in the open market and paid the price demanded. It is conceded that the wholesalers of whom the defendants purchased were under no contract or obligation to impose any condition upon the defendants and they did not. There is no privity of contract between the defendants and the complainants. There is no suggestion in the notice that the retail dealer who buys the copies of the book in the open market enters into any contractual relation with the publishers. It is not stated that the copy of the book is sold on condition that the purchaser will abide by and enforce the price arrangement. The notice is assertive in its terms. It is a dictum. It says that the price of the book at retail is one dollar net. The plain meaning of this language is that if the signer of the notice sells a copy of the book or the book in question containing the notice, at retail the price is one dollar. The notice also asserts that the Bobbs-Merrill Company has not licensed any retail dealer to sell at a less price. It does not say or suggest that the Bobbs-Merrill Company has not sold millions of copies of the book for the trade parting with the title absolutely and unconditionally. This Court is aware that the Keeler case, cited above, is a patent and not a copyright case, but the principle is the same.

In a supplemental brief filed by the counsel for the complainant, he states that he does not consider the notice published in the book as in the nature of a license. He says: "In my opinion, the putting of the book upon the market and selling it by the owner of the copyright constitutes the license; and this notice published in the book is a limitation and qualification of that license. If the book is put out without any notice, the license is unqualified and the sale is absolute; but my contention is that the owner of the copyright has the authority to restrict the license; and, being published in this way, the restriction attaches to the property and is a charge and limitation upon the rights of all parties purchasing the book for resale." This is a claim that the owner of a copyright for a book who prints the book and sells it for a consideration gives to the purchaser a license and does not sell and convey a piece of personal property absolutely. The contention here is that any notice printed in a book and brought to the attention of the purchaser is a restriction of that license to that extent and may be enforced, and that a violation of the obligation imposed by the notice is an infringement of the copyright which may be restrained by the federal courts. This doctrine, it seems to this Court, is contrary to the adjudicated cases. I do not think this contention can be sustained upon principle. Clearly it is opposed to public policy. The purchaser of an article not patented may duplicate it if he can. The purchaser of an article made under a patent right may not duplicate it, but he may use the article purchased and sell the same as his own in any way or for any price he sees fit. The purchaser of a book not copyrighted may duplicate it; make copies or a reprint. The purchaser of a copyrighted book may not make or print or publish a copy, as this would be an infringement of the copyright, but this restriction in no way interferes with the absolute ownership of the particular copy of the book. The owner of an article made under a patent right or of a book printed under a copyright is in no sense a license of the patentee or of the owner of the copyright.

"License" with reference to real estate is a permission or authority to do a particular act or a series of acts on the land of another without possessing any estate therein. So with reference to personal property "license" implies and carries the power to do some act upon or in reference to or to do something with the property of another. Herein it differs from an easement. The word easement always implies an interest in the land.

See Words and Phrases, Vol. 5, title "License."

WHAT IS THE PRESENT COMBINATION AND ITS OBJECT—OR PURPOSE.

1. The American Publishers' Association has adopted a net price system for all copyrighted books published or controlled by any member or members of the Association and made an agreement to maintain it. By this agreement the members thereof are to cut off all supply of their copyrighted books to any dealer who fails to maintain the net price of such books as fixed by such Association, or what is the same thing, by its members. In short this combination fixes the price of copyrighted books published by its members, and the price at which such books are to be sold, both at wholesale and at retail, and agrees not to furnish or sell any of these books to any dealer who fails to maintain such price, that is, demand and exact from the purchaser the price so fixed.

2. Another Association, the American Booksellers' Association, assents to this, agrees to co-operate and be bound by such system and arrangement, and to aid and assist in carrying it into effect, and to this end agrees not to buy, or keep in stock, or offer for sale the copyrighted book of any publisher who refuses to join the combination and enforce this price system and demand and exact of the customer this price fixed by the combination. Two-thirds of the members of this Association govern. If any member fails to live up to the agreement, etc., he may be expelled and he is not to have books and all members are "restrained" from supplying books, etc. (See Subdivisions 4 and 5 of Exhibit I.) The objects are (1) to compel the would-be owners and readers of copyrighted books to purchase their books of the members of this combination, made up of two combinations embracing at least ninety per cent. of all publishers and dealers in copyrighted books, at an arbitrary price fixed by the combination regardless of the actual value of the book as determined by a demand therefore established in a free and open market or the condition of the books. (2) To compel all publishers of and dealers in copyrighted books to come into the combination, submit to and be controlled by it and sell books at prices fixed by it, regardless of the value of the books, etc., or of the exigencies of the trade and situation of the seller or be deprived of the privilege of purchasing, owning and selling such books. In short such as refuse to come in are to be crippled or perhaps ruined in their business. As the combination extends throughout the United States by the very terms of the agreement interstate commerce is necessarily restrained. A judgment for the complainants in this action will restrain interstate commerce.

If this suit is one to restrain the infringement of a copyright granted to the complainant and now owned by it, by the doing of any act that constitutes infringement of that right, and defendant has infringed, it is entirely immaterial that the combination described exists or that complainant is a member thereof or that its objects are those described.

It is no defense to such a trespass upon the complainants' rights that it has violated and is violating the Sherman anti-trust law, Act of July 2, 1890 (26 St. 209; U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3200), or some statute of the State of New York. In General Electric Co. v. Wise, 119 Fed. Rep., 922-924, this Court so held, citing cases. This Court there said:

"It is difficult to understand how or why a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law by this complainant, if there has been such a violation, confers any right on the defendant to infringe this patent. That act points out the penalties for its violation, and it is not understood that such law denies the grantees of patents the protection of the law because they may be violating some statute. However that may be the evidence falls far short of establishing such a violation by this complainant. The testimony on that subject is squarely contradicted. An individual cannot confiscate the property or property right of a corporation on the ground it has violated that act. Soda Fountain Co. v. Green (C. C.), 69 Fed. 333; Columbia Wire Co. v. Freeman Wire Co. (C. C.) 71 Fed. 302; Bement v. Harrow Co., 186 U. S. 70, 88-91, 22 Sup. Ct. 747, 46 L. Ed. 1058. Harrow Co. v. Quick (C. C.), 67 Fed. 131, cannot be accepted as authority on this question."

See also Strait v. National Harrow Co., 51 Fed. Rep. 819.

But if the complainant has turned over to the combination the fixing of prices and has entered into the combination described and becomes a party to the agreement for the purposes described, and is now, through this suit, attempting as this Court holds it is, to enforce such combination agreement in whole or in part, and such agreement is unlawful because in violation of the act referred to, then this action cannot be maintained. The complainant confessedly is a party to the combination and the agreement and cannot, if it be illegal, have a standing in a court of equity to enforce any part of it directly or indirectly. When a complainant comes into court asking equity it must come with clean hands so far as the transaction involved is concerned. If a party, person or corporation, in attempting to violate the rights of the public and the rights of those persons who will not join in the attempted violation of law, suffers some injury to his property or property rights which are being used by his consent by those who are thus violating the law, in perpetrating such violation, at the hands of one who is lawfully resisting such attempted injury, he or it cannot, while continuing the illegal acts, have an injunction to enjoin the resisting acts resulting in such injury. Each owner of the copyright of a book has a monopoly of that particular book. Copyrights, like patents, are assignable and hence a person or a corporation may lawfully become the owner of any number of copyrights or of all the copyrights of books issued by the United States, and it is immaterial that the purpose is to monopolize the whole business of publishing and selling copyrighted books. In such cases such person or corporation would hold and control all the monopolies for such copyrights of books and he or it could print and sell, or print and not sell, or refuse to print at all, or refuse to allow others to print or publish. Should he or it print or publish one or more copies of these books such person or corporation could appoint agents to sell and prescribe and limit their powers. He or it could license one or more persons to sell and prescribe the terms and conditions of such sale, and limit the price at which same should be sold. Assume that such person or corporation has fixed the price at which such book shall be sold at retail by such agents and licensees and may restrain a disposition of such books in violation of the conditions we have no combination or conspiracy. One man cannot combine or conspire. It takes two or more to make a combination or a conspiracy. So an agreement by all holders of copyrights to assign same to one person or corparation is but a sale of their own, and they may take pay in cash, horses, scrap iron or licenses to sell the copyrighted book provided they actually sell their copyrights. If the agreement be a mere pretence, however, a mere cover for a combination to violate some statute, then such agreement to sell their copyrights would be void and the whole combination would be illegal and void. So one person may purchase and own all the hay, oats or potatoes existing in the country. If he becomes such owner he may fix the price at which he will sell. Here there is no conspiracy or illegal combination. But if the several owners of such produce combine and agree that they will fix prices, interfere with and limit interstate commerce, drive all other dealers and owners of similar property who will not join them in their purposes out of business and deprive them, if possible, of their right to purchase and ship produce from State to State as a part of interstate commerce, we undoubtedly have an illegal combination and no member of such a conspiracy can enforce in a court of equity any contract or agreement made in execution, in whole or part, of such a conspiracy. It is evident that one may do, in fixing and enforcing prices, and in exacting tribute from the people and restraining interstate commerce, what two or more cannot do in pursuance of an agreement or combination. A corporation on becoming the owner of several patents or of several copyrights may do all acts under each that the person to whom such rights were originally granted might have done. Having become the owner it is entitled to the benefits and privileges of the monopolies granted. But all this affords no sanction or support whatever to the doctrine that the several owners of distinct patents, each having a monopoly of his particular patent, or the several owners of distinct copyrights, each having a monopoly of his particular copyright, may combine and conspire as to their patented articles or as to their copyrights or books published under and protected thereby to restrain interstate commerce in articles made or produced thereunder. A right or privilege to form such a combination or conspiracy is not embraced or included within the monopoly granted. The monopoly of one patentee cannot be extended and made more of a monopoly by that of another. The grant of an exclusive right to make and vend a certain machine does not include a license to combine and conspire with another having a like exclusive right to restrain trade and commerce between the States in those articles if made and put on the market or to conspire not to put them on the market. The right to elect not to make or sell is necessarily included. The right to combine and conspire is not. In any event the so-called Sherman Law forbids any and all combinations in restraint of such commerce.

In the case of copyrighted books it is evident that if the publisher of one or two should demand and exact of the purchaser at retail a grossly unreasonable price he would sell but few if any copies. Others would supply the market, for readers would forego that book of those books and find reading matter elsewhere. But when all publishers of and dealers in copyrighted books—and nearly all new books are now copyrighted—combine to exact a fixed arbitrary price, etc., the readers of books become powerless, if they would read at all, not because of the monopoly granted or sanctioned by the government in granting the copyright but because of the new monopoly, (the conspiracy of monopolists,) created by the agreement and combination of these monopolists, one that is forbidden and denounced by the Act of July 2, 1890 (26 St. L. 209), entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies."

Section one of that acts reads, "Every contract, combination in the form of a trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce amongst the several States, or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal."

It is not necessary that the effect necessarily be to restrain trade or commerce. It is sufficient if the combination may have that effect. It seems to this Court impossible to hold that this section of the act does not apply to a combination of patentees to restrain trade and commerce in patented articles made under their patents as much as to such a combination made by dealers in other articles of commerce.

In 1 Page on Contracts, Sec. 445, p. 698, after a statement regarding the law as to "Monopoly Contracts concerning Patents" it is said "But if the owners of distinct patents combine to prevent competition in business, and to control the price of the patented article, such combinations and all contracts for such purposes are as invalid as if the articles were not patented." The following cases are cited to sustain the statement: National Harrow Co. v. Hench, 83 Fed. Rep. 36; 27 C. C. A. 349; 55 U. S. App. 53; 39 L. R. A. 299; National Harrow Co. v. Quick, 67 Fed. Rep. 130; Vulcan Powder Co. v. Powder Co., 96 Cal. 510; 31 Am. St. Red. 242; Gamewell, etc., Co. v. Crane, 160 Mass. 50; 22 L. R. A. 673.

In 1 State and Federal Control of Persons and Property (Tiedman), 412-413, it is said "But the mere fact that the subject matter of the monopolistic combination may be patent rights, covering machines employed in the same art or industry, will not protect the combination from the penal provisions of the anti-trust laws. If a corporation or association is formed among manufacturers and patentees of certain articles of kindred character in order to control the trade and prices of such articles, the combination is nevertheless illegal although the exclusive manufacture of the goods is guaranteed by letters patent from the United States government." At the time of that writing, 1900, the author was not aware of the decision in Bement v. National Harrow Co., 186 U. S., 70, which modifies some of the cases cited by him, but not in respect to the general doctrine stated.

In Bement v. Harrow Co., supra, the Court at page 94 plainly intimates that the several owners of several patents may not combine to restrain commerce in their patented articles. It is unnecessary to cite many cases. If Mantague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, and Northern Securities Company v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, are to be respected as law and followed in cases where there is no hue and cry against railroads, this combination is illegal as in restraint of interstate commerce.

If anything can be found in the prevailing opinion in John D. Park & Sons Co. v. The Wholesale Druggists' Association et. al., 175 N. Y., 1, supporting the contention of the complainants here, it is sufficient to say that this Court does not agree with the prevailing opinion or decision in that case, but does agree with the dissenting opinions of Martin J. and Cullen, C. J., with whom Vann J. concurred.

The defendants have not infringed and are not threatening to infringe complainants' copyright, nor have they violated any contract. The complainant is seeking to enforce against defendants an unlawful combination agreement to which such defendants are not parties and by which they have not consented to be bound in selling books of which they are the absolute owners. The same result on a similar state of facts as to the effect of such notice was reached by the Court in Bobbs-Merrill Co. v. Snellenburg, 131 Fed. Rep. 530.

The defendants are entitled to a decree dismissing the complaint with costs.

NEW SHAKESPEARE FINDS.

As a result of the recent discovery, in a Buckinghamshire village of the old quarto of "The Tragedie of King Richard the Third," sold at Sotheby's on the 12th inst., "five more quartos," according to the London Academy, "have been forthcoming from George Carrington, of Great Missenden. Great Missenden is within a short distance of the cottage in Chalfont St. Giles to which Milton, "Inferior to the vilest now become," retired during the plague, just after "Paradise Lost" had been completed. Milton had for neighbors Penn, whose meeting place at the Jordans, with its secluded little burial ground, still remains; and the Quaker Ellwood, in whom, though all was "irrevocably dark. . . . Without all hope of day," he found a close friend, and who, on seeing "Paradise Lost," advised the poet to write a companion poem, "Paradise Found."

"The Tragedie of King Richard the Third," as noted in our account of the sale in our issue for July 15, bears the signature "Wm. Penn," probably that of the admiral, father of the founder of Pennsylvania, in five places, and it is noteworthy that one of the five quartos which are to be offered by Messrs. Sotheby on the 29th inst. bears the same autograph. This is the "Second Part of the History of King Henry the Fourth," 1605; the others are the "True Chronicle History of the Life and Death of King Lear," 1608, "The Tragedie of King Richard the Second," 1605, the "Historie of Henry the Fourth, with the Battle at Shrewsburie," 1608, and "The Most Excellent Historie of the Merchant of Venice, with the extreame Cruelty of Shylocke the Jew towards the said Merchant in cutting a just pound of his flesh; and the obtaining of Portia by the Choyce of three Chests," 1652.

OUTING OF EMPLOYEES OF AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY.

THE Mutual Benefit Association of the Employees of the American News Company is to hold its first annual picnic and games at Banzer's Cypress Hills Park, Evergreen, L. I., on Saturday, August 26. The tickets, admitting one person, are 25 cents, and as the committee in charge of the entertainment wishes the members and their friends, both men and women, to have a thoroughly good time, there will be numerous games, dancing and other forms of amusement. Charles F. Lehr is chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, and J. Gillis is chairman of the judges of the games.

CATALOGUING SECOND-HAND BOOKS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Seven years ago I put forward in your columns a plea for a uniform system in cataloguing second-hand books—a plea which you very cordially upheld—contributing some valuable practical suggestions in a leading article dealing with the subject.

But my feeble voice, even with your powerful backing, did not reach far, and so far as I can see there has been no concerted action taken in the direction indicated.

Recently, however, a more powerful voice has been lifted in favor of the idea. At the meeting of the Associated Booksellers of Great Britain and Ireland, held in Edinburgh last month, Lord Rosebery, in the course of his reply to the toast of "Literature," said, among many other interesting things, "With regard to second-hand literature, much is to be done by grouping and guidance, and I believe that in that direction the future of book catalogues must take shape. In that way you are not merely vendors, but educators, and that after all is the proper function of the bookseller." But more than this—not only would it be a boon to the bookbuyer—it would pay the bookseller. With the A. L. A. catalogue class list before him the task of classification is easy, and if the sellers of second-hand books would all agree to follow this or some other system time and money would be saved by everybody concerned.

Yours truly,

CHARLES WELSH.

WINTHROP, MASS., July 6, 1905.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

TO RESTRAIN PIRACY OF A GIBSON DRAWING.

PETER F. and ROBERT J. COLLIER, publishers of Collier's Weekly, have brought suit against Willis H. Peters, of Norwalk, Ohio, for reprinting, without authority, one of Charles Dana Gibson's drawings, entitled "The Game of Life—His Move." For the infringement of the copyright, the Colliers ask $5000 damages, while the privilege of the exclusive control and publication is valued at $25,000, in which sum they ask damages. A perpetual injunction is asked, a temporary one having been granted, restraining Peters from further publication and circulation of the picture.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HENRY NATHAN WHEELER, in charge of the educational department of Houghton, Mifflin & Co. since 1882, died in Cambridge, Mass., July 7. Mr. Wheeler was born in Concord, Mass., September 3, 1850, and was graduated from Harvard in 1871. Soon thereafter he became an instructor of mathematics in Harvard, which he left in 1882 to take charge of the educational and school book publications of Houghton, Mifflin & Company, at times assisting authors while preparing their books. He himself wrote and published "Elements of Plane Trigonometry," "Spherical Trigonometry," "Logarithms" and "Second Lessons in Arithmetic." He also edited the "Harvard University Catalogue," 1878-1882, and revised and edited Warren Colburn's "Intellectual Arithmetic." Mr. Wheeler took an interest in politics and was an active member of the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Association.

MRS. BERTHA WILLIAMS, well known in the booktrade for the last ten years as a book buyer, died suddenly in Chicago on the 18th inst. Mrs. Williams was formerly connected with A. M. Rothschild & Co., of Chicago, and Lit Brothers, of Philadelphia, and more recently with Joseph Horne & Co., of Pittsburg, on whose behalf she had gone to Chicago to look over the samples at the book fair. She was about forty years of age.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Twentieth Century Home, John Brisben Walker's monthly, has suspended publication until October, in order to build up a new editorial and business staff, the old staff having gone to W. R. Hearst with the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

AFTER thirty years of continuous publication the monthly magazine founded by Frank Leslie will no longer bear his name. With the September number it will become The American Illustrated Magazine. Some years ago the magazine passed out of control of the publisher's widow, who managed it for a while after Mr. Leslie's death. It was acquired by the Colver Publishing House, of which Frederick L. Colver is the head. The editor is Ellery Sedgwick, who has occupied Frank Leslie's editorial chair for the last four years. Mr. Colver has been connected with Leslie's for eighteen years. The reason given for the change of name is the radical difference between the magazine of to-day and the Leslie publications of long ago. The Colver Publishing House has built up a new property on the foundation that Leslie laid, and have won new friends. Leslie is now a mere memory to a few and they find his name little less than a handicap, and their present course is simply a logical step in the development of this magazine as a high-class monthly.

BUSINESS NOTES.

EMPORIA, KAN.—Eckdall & Haver, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—David B. Clarkson has opened a bookstore at 9 South Illinois Street.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—William J. Burkhardt, manufacturing stationer. 206 Ocean Avenue, has just issued a catalogue of stationery novelties specially suitable for the holidays which will be sent to interested dealers free upon request.

NEW YORK CITY.—A hearing will be had at the U. S. District Court, in the Post-Office Building, on July 26 at 10 A.M., on the application of William Beverley Harison to be discharged from bankruptcy.

NEW YORK CITY.—The report that Brentano's are erecting a building on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, and that they will remove their business there is, we are authorized to say, without any foundation whatever.

ZANESVILLE, O.—The Edmiston Book and Stationery Company has succeeded the Edmiston-Horney Company.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE PUBLISHERS' CONGRESS will meet in Milan, Italy, from June 6 to 10 next year.

THE C. A. NICHOLS COMPANY, Springfield, Mass., will publish shortly "Seventy Centuries," by J. N. Larned, editor of the "History of For Ready Reference and Topical Reading," and author of several popular histories.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, The Bodley Head, have just issued a new novel entitled "A Child of the Shore," a romance of Cornwall, by S. M. Fox, full of tradition and legend. Folk-lore and local superstitions still linger in the Cornwall region. It is not so long since Robert Stephen Hawker, the "vicar poet," assured visitors that he had occasionally seen mermaids in the sea along the beach.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish in the late summer a "Textbook in the History of Education," by Professor Paul Monroe, of the Teachers' College, New York City. The conception of the history of education adopted as a working basis is said to be radically different from that of similar works, and the volume will contain from three to four times the material found in any other English book on the subject.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in preparation a new book by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell Keays, best known as the author of the novel entitled "He That Eateth Bread with Me." The new book will be entitled "The Work of Our Hands," and will deal with a problem of wealth. They will publish this fall a book concerning children, entitled "Little Lords of Creation," also by Mrs. Keays, which has recently been brought out in England.

SWINBURNE'S novel "Love's Cross-Currents," according to the London Athenæum, was written many years ago, and was printed anonymously under the name of "A Year's Letters," in a weekly periodical called The Tatler, long since dead, edited by the well-known novelist, E. Francillon. The novel, although it has undergone no fundamental changes either in story or in characterization since its first appearance, has been revised by the author.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY, Akron, O., have in press a new book by Frances Trego Montgomery, author of the popular "Billy Whisker" series. Her new book is for older children and will be entitled "Frances and the Irrepressibles at Buena Vista Farm," giving an account of the many ways in which a party of boys and girls amused themselves one summer while boarding at a farm house. The book, which appeals to girls and boys alike, will be very fully illustrated.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish early in the fall Anthony Hope's new novel, "A Servant of the Public," also, a volume of stories entitled "The Black Spaniel," by Robert Hichens, author of "The Garden of Allah." These two important books head a list of promising fiction, including new books by Robert Barr and Agnes and Egerton Castle. "The Garden of Allah," now in its seventh large printing, continues to gain in popular favor; and "Rose of the World," also among the "best selling" books, is now in its fourth printing.

THE CENTURY CO. have in preparation for fall publication a book on "Versailles and the Court under Louis XIV.," by James Eugene Farmer, instructor in English literature at St. Paul's School, Concord, and the author of "Essays on French History," etc. Beginning with the inception of the plans for the palace and the laying out of the grounds, the author goes on to describe in detail the glories of the finished work and the daily life of the Grand Monarch and his court. The book will be very fully illustrated. They also announce the first Red Saunders novel, "Plain Mary Smith," by Henry Wallace Phillips.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT have in preparation "The Old Road," by Hillaire Belloc, the author of "Robespierre," etc., which presents a view of the great English thoroughfare through descriptions and pictures, the latter including eleven photogravure plates and seventeen line illustrations, besides a map in six sections; "Chats on Violins," by Olga Ragster, dealing with the history of the violin and the better known forms of this instrument, and the great makers, from Caspar di Salos and Amati to Stradivarius, with illustrations presenting a series of types of the violin from the ninth century down to to-day; also, a new novel by E. Maria Albanesi, (Effie A. Rowlands,) entitled "Capricious Caroline," dealing with English society.

L. C. PAGE & Co. published on the 13th inst. "Cameron of Lochiel," a translation from the French by Professor Charles G. D. Roberts. The book relates the adventures of a young Scotch exile in Canada, during the period when the French and English were struggling for the possession of that country. The frontispiece is in color, from a drawing by H. C. Edwards, and the cover is an attractive design showing the Scotch thistle and the Cameron plaid. They will publish before the end of July the following two books for boys: "The Rival Campers," by Ruel P. Smith, which deals with the vacation experiences of two parties of campers on an island off the coast of Maine; and "The Young Section Hand," by Burton E. Stevenson, a story of railroading.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have in preparation "Indian Tales," a collection of stories originally printed in St. Nicholas, which, though intended for lads just coming to the age of interest in their country's history, should appeal to all young people. Further books in this promising series of historical tales will be: "Colonial Stories," "Revolutionary Stories," "Civil War Stories," and "Our National Holidays." Under the editorship of W. W. Willoughby, Professor of Political Science at Johns Hopkins University, the Century Company has issued five volumes of its series on The American State. Three more volumes are in active preparation. "The American Executive and Executive Methods," by President J. H. Finley, of the College of the City of New York; "American Legislatures and Legislative Methods," by Professor Paul R. Reinsch, of the University of Wisconsin; "Local Government in the United States," by Professor John A. Fairlie, of the University of Michigan.

THE suit brought by Edwin M. Post, a New York stock broker, against Charles H. Ahle, solicitor for a concern called the Society Editors' Association of 503 Fifth Avenue, New York, for an alleged attempt at blackmail, incidentally emphasizes, for the thousandth or more times, how easy it is to take advantage of the vanity of certain people. The defendant acted as canvasser for two special books, "America's Smart Set," and "Fads and Fancies," in which the doings of certain members of Society were glowingly described and illustrated, for which, it appears, a number of prominent people in New York and elsewhere actually paid from $500 to $1500 a copy for a book that has not yet been published. In order to bring pressure on the plaintiff, Ahle is said to have intimated that if Post did not subscribe certain stories damaging to his reputation might be printed in a certain so-called society paper. Post paid Ahle $500 in marked bills, and had him arrested. Ahle is held in default of $3500 bail. How many others were induced to subscribe under this pressure the District Attorney is now trying to discover.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE GREAT MOGUL

By LOUIS TRACY

Author of "The Wings of the Morning"

When a publisher has a new story ready to bring out which he knows is good; which follows acknowledged successes by the same author; and when the new book is a lot better than the two which preceded it, he feels like the small boy with a bunch of fire-crackers—he is anxious to hear the bang, and he wants to set off the whole pack at once.

THE GREAT MOGUL

is good enough to be advertised in various newspapers in one-quarter page space from time to time; and I think it is good enough to give every dealer a quick profit on a good many copies.

Educational Department
NEW BOOKS OF 1905

THE ELEMENTS of RHETORIC and COMPOSITION. By A. H. Thorndike, Professor of English Literature in Northwestern University. 12mo. 350 pages. $1.00.

An elementary hand-book for use in schools and colleges, and intended to accompany a course in theme-writing. The old order of text-book, consisting of prohibitory rules and examples of bad English, is now being surely and rapidly replaced by books adapted to modern methods of teaching. Professor Thorndike's book has been commended as being thoroughly practical, and it is believed that it will prove adaptable to the needs of a greater number of classes than any preceding book.

Professor CHARLES SEARS BALDWIN, Yale University: "Being both sound in doctrine and serviceable in method, the book is exceptionally practical. I shall recommend it to teachers."

Dr. RICHARD M. JONES, William Penn Charter School, Philadelphia, Pa.: "The mechanical get-up of the book is exactly what it should be. The binding is flexible at the back, allowing the book to be handled with the utmost ease. The paper has the dead surface so grateful to the eyes and so rare in other books, and the type is clear and open."

HISTORICAL STORIES: Retold from St. Nicholas. A series of volumes designed for supplementary reading. Cloth bound, about 200 pages each.

Encouraged by the popularity and usefulness of the "Animal Stories" series, retold from St. Nicholas, The Century Co. has planned another series from the same source—this time on historical subjects. The general division into books is chronological, according to the usual order.

In these volumes many of the best names in our literature are represented, and the stories were not perfunctorily written to order but were the product of inspired pens. The illustrations are the best work of our great artists. The large beautiful type and dead surface of the paper contribute their share to make books children will treasure.

NOW READY

INDIAN STORIES. Most of the stories in this book a boy of eight or nine can read for himself. The stories will delight, thrill, and interest any young reader, and coming at the age when he is being taught something of our colonial history will serve a very useful purpose.

IN PREPARATION

COLONIAL STORIES
REVOLUTIONARY STORIES
CIVIL WAR STORIES

THE AMERICAN STATE.—New Volumes

THE AMERICAN STATE. A series of eight volumes for Colleges, Schools, and General Readers. Describing comprehensively the manner in which the governmental agencies of the American State, federal, commonwealth, and local, are organized and administered at the present time. Edited by W. W. WILLOUGHBY, Professor of Political Science at the Johns Hopkins University.

It is intended that primarily these volumes shall be descriptive of actual conditions. Each volume, though complete in itself, will have its proper place in the series, and will have been prepared by an acknowledged expert with special reference to that fact. No similar series has been published hitherto.

12mo, 320 pages each, $1.25 net per volume

NOW READY

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY will issue shortly a novel on the divorce question by Orr Kenyon, to be entitled "What God Hath (Not) Joined."

THE CENTURY COMPANY will issue shortly "The Long Day," the story of a girl's fight against starvation by a writer who came to New York City without friends or experience and has made a great success; and "Jules of the Great Heart," by Lawrence Mott, who is regarded as a young writer of unusual promise.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. have just ready Eugene P. Lyle's novel, "The Missourian," which deals with the Maximilian régime in Mexico. The author spent two years making studies on the spot. His father is a successful mining engineer in Mexico. The publishers are naturally pleased that A. Radcliffe Dugmore's "Nature and the Camera" is to appear in Germany; and "Fairy Tales Every Child Should Know" and "Poems Every Child Should Know" will be brought out in England. A third edition of "The Lion's Skin," by Captain John S. Wise, is also in preparation.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY have just added to their Goldenrod Library "Findelkind," by "Ouida;" "A Small, Small Child," by E. Livingston Prescott; "The Fairy of the Rhone," by Comyns Carr; "Helena's Wonderworld," by Frances Hodges White; and Alphonse Daudet's "La Belle Nivernaise." Stephen Conrad's eagerly expected "Mrs. Jim and Mrs. Jimmie" is now ready and is in one way a sequel to last year's successful "The Second Mrs. Jim;" and during August will appear the authorized edition of Bliss Carman's "Complete Poems" in two volumes, which will be limited to 500 copies and will be specially printed by the Chiswick Press of London.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have in preparation for immediate publication "The Fern Allies of North America: North of Mexico," by Dr. Willard Nelson Clute, formerly assistant curator of the New York Botanical Garden and author of many important studies in American botany. Dr. Clute's "Our Ferns in Their Haunts," published several years ago, remains the standard work on the ferns of North America. In the preparation of this sequel, dealing with the allied forms of plant life not included in the fern families, the same careful attention to detail has been given that characterized the earlier work. The volume will have eight full-page colored plates and more than 200 line and half-tone illustrations drawn from living plants by Ida Martin Clute.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO. will publish on August 15 an American edition of "The Complete Golfer," by Harry Vardon, three times champion of England and once of the United States; "Plunkitt of Tammany Hall," by W. L. Riordan, who voices very sincere and forceful opinions on government of states and cities under the guise of humorous philosophy; and "John D. Rockefeller: a Character Sketch," made up of the two articles contributed by Ida M. Tarbell to McClure's Magazine. On September 15 will be issued "My Friend the Chauffeur," a new motor car romance by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, of "Lightning Conductor" fame. Four much entangled love stories run through the story which has not been issued as a serial, but makes its first appearance complete in book form.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY

American Educational List, 1905

This List plans to include all textbooks used in American schools and academic institutions (not in universities, professional or technical schools;) also classical and foreign texts annotated for schools, and such English texts as are required for college entrance examinations, 1905-7. Entries are under authors or editors; classical texts are entered under editor's name, foreign and English texts under author's name, with editor's name in parenthesis. For subject classification, and for collective reference to classical authors entered under editors, see the second part of this List, following the main alphabet. The List does not include other English texts, (except comprehensive school editions of Shakespeare;) nor Supplementary Reading, (except references to some comprehensive series and a few special books.) The list does not include works of reference for schools, (except dictionaries;) nor Teachers' Aids, (except teachers' manuals forming part of a textbook series.) It is also intended to exclude imported textbooks, except such as are printed with American imprint or sold here in class quantities.

The List omits works out of print or superseded by newer editions, or works obsolete in the sense of being no longer sold in quantities for class introduction, but only in individual copies to schools having the book already in use. For such works see the American Educational List of previous years.

The price given is the "net" or introduction price made by the publisher (with close trade discount only,) for which a copy is sent to a teacher postpaid. Where an additional mailing charge is made for postage on single copies, an asterisk () precedes the price. Books priced at retail, with regular trade discount, are designated by a dagger (†) in the price column. When there is a blank in price column the publisher failed to give information. A double asterisk () designates books forthcoming and yet unpriced. New books issued since the List of 1904 are designated by a single asterisk () before title.

☞ Be particular in ordering to specify edition, and to give the full name of the book as entered in this List.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 29, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE EDUCATIONAL LIST AND THE TRADE IN SCHOOL-BOOKS.

As indicated last year, the Educational List for 1905 has been revised to bring it into present conformity with the practice of educational publishers as regards prices, and will be found, we trust, greatly improved in other respects. The practice of publishers in pricing textbooks is by no means uniform or consistent, and presents many difficulties both to the cataloguer and to the dealer. We have adopted as the basic price that at which a single copy is mailed to a teacher on his application, postage paid, a price properly called net but more often called the introduction price, and sometimes, incorrectly, a wholesale price. This is the price at which single copies and the ordinary school supply are furnished, the only discount being a close discount to the trade or to Boards of Education purchasing in large quantities for a school system. Some publishers very rightly add to this net or introduction price the mailing charge, and this fact is designated by an asterisk in the price column, which means that the price stated is not inclusive of postage. Some books used in schools are still issued on the old system, permitting a larger discount to the trade, and this "retail" price is designated by a dagger in the price column. Special pains have also been taken this year to eliminate books which are obsolete or sold only in single copies to keep up the supply in schools which adopted the work years ago.

One of the most striking changes which has come over the educational trade is the substitution of "texts" of works of literature for the old-fashioned "reader," both in foreign languages and in English. American colleges have more and more relied upon a uniform schedule of textbooks required for college entrance examinations, and we give a list of these elsewhere. It is practically impossible to make an educational list covering all English texts offered for school use without undertaking to compile almost a catalogue of English literature; but we have included in the present list the competing editions of foreign texts annotated for school use and of the English texts designated in the college schedules for the entrance examinations up to 1907.

The extent of the Educational List is itself proof of the difficulty of keeping in stock in a retail store a supply of school books representative of American educational literature. Yet this is no reason why a retail bookseller should abandon the educational trade. The bookseller ought to inform himself thoroughly of the books used in the schools of his town, and it is best to provide such facilities as will hold such trade as still exists outside of direct relationship between schools and publishers. There is in fact so little profit in most textbooks that this seems scarcely worth while to the local dealer, yet the relation of the bookstore with this part of the community is so important that it is worth while to do all that can be done to strengthen relations with the clientele of teachers and scholars.

LIBRARY STATISTICS.

THE Federal Commissioner of Education has published some interesting library statistics showing that in 1903 the number of books in public, society and school libraries was 54,419,000. The number represented an increase of 374 per cent. in twenty-eight years, an increase largely due to Mr. Andrew Carnegie, to whom upwards of a thousand libraries in the United States owe their existence, wholly or in part. The number of volumes in 1900 was 44,591,000. The largest collection of books in the United States is the Congressional Library, which contains 1,000,000 volumes, including pamphlets, next to which comes Harvard University, which contains 560,000 bound volumes, and 350,000 pamphlets. The Boston Public Library figures in the third place, the aggregate number of its books and pamphlets being 772,000. The New York Public Library, which will comprehend the Astor, Lenox, and Tilden foundations, has 500,000 volumes and 140,000 pamphlets. To appreciate, however, the facilities for reading afforded in New York, we should mention that the New York City Library has 500,000 volumes, together with a large number of pamphlets; that the library of Columbia University has nearly 300,000 volumes and 15,000 pamphlets, and the Mercantile Library, 262,000 volumes, including pamphlets. The Philadelphia Library Company owns 201,000 volumes and 31,000 pamphlets, and the number of books and pamphlets in the Philadelphia Free Library is 207,000. The Chicago Public Library has 258,000 books and pamphlets, and in the library of the Chicago University there are 329,000 books and 150,000 pamphlets. All of the last-mentioned statistics refer to 1900. In the same year, according to Harper's Weekly, by which these figures are condensed, the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris had 3,000,000 books and pamphlets, the British Museum 2,000,000, the Imperial Library at St. Petersburg 1,500,000, and the Royal Library at Berlin, 1,000,000. It appears that the number of American publications in 1902 was 7833; of British publications in the same year, 7381; of Italian publications in 1900, 9975; of French publications in 1902, 12,199; of German publications in the same year, 26,906.

It will surprise most persons to learn that 17,985 books were published in Russia in 1895, and 21,255 in Japan in 1899. From another point of view, it may be noted that in the United States books accessible to the public are far from being evenly distributed, although Mr. Carnegie has tried to lessen the inequality by directing especial attention to the western section of the community. As things are now, however, in the Indian Territory in 1903 there were only two books for one hundred people, and only twelve in Alabama and Mississippi. On the other hand, in the District of Columbia no fewer than 925 books are available for every one hundred persons. Massachusetts has 256 volumes for every one hundred of the population. If the United States be looked at collectively, we find that there are sixty-eight books to one hundred inhabitants.

The Library Journal for June, commenting editorially on this report, says: "Unfortunately, many libraries failed to answer the request for information, and in these cases old statistics were left. This represents the "dead wood" in the library forest, and it is to be hoped that in the next report there may be a careful elimination of libraries which have no longer more than a nominal existence. Probably the number of real libraries is less, and the total number of books more, than is shown in the report. The percentages of increase are certainly remarkable, and we are nearing the point when we shall have the average of a book for each inhabitant in the public libraries of the United States. It is interesting to note that New York and Massachusetts together have approximately one-fourth of the total number of libraries and total number of books, and the North Atlantic States approximately one-half of the whole number. California is showing remarkable development, and the backward part of the country is still the South, which, however, is now feeling a new growth of library interest."

BOOKTRADE SWINDLERS.

JOHN POWERS, alias Ambrose Laprell, alias A. Howard, alias Logan, was arraigned before Commissioner Shields on the 25th inst., charged by Post Office Inspector James T. Cortelyou, of Newark, N. J., with using the mails in a book swindling scheme by which publishing houses have been swindled out of thousands of dollars' worth of books.

According to the complaint, it is alleged that one of the accused wrote a letter to a publishing firm, professing to be a book agent with a prospective customer and asking for a quantity of samples. This letter was supported by others, said to have been written by members of the crowd as if from reputable persons, with elaborate letterheads and apparently good addresses. These letters not only backed up the book agent's request for samples, but ordered a large lot of books for their writers also. The books, when secured, were immediately sold and the gang removed to another town from which, according to the inspectors, they would work the scheme anew.

One of the letters quoted in the complaint asks John D. Morris & Co., a Philadelphia publishing firm, to "kindly pack for immediate shipment" about $600 worth of French and English fiction. Another requests samples "for a gentleman's library" worth between $750 and $1000.

Powers was released on $1500 bail pending a hearing before the Grand Jury. He is the second of the crowd to be arrested. They are alleged to have operated in Newark, but were both arrested in New York City.

THE PENNYPACKER LIBRARY TO BE SOLD.

THE rare historical library of Governor Pennypacker, of Pennsylvania, will be sold at auction early in the fall. Among the books which will fall under the hammer are 160 volumes printed by Benjamin Franklin. These, together with about 200 old "Germantown imprints," are conservatively valued at $10,000.

Among other prizes is a diary of George Washington in manuscript. It was written at Mount Vernon, and contains remarks about the weather, the planting of crops and such things. There are papers of all the Presidents down to Grant, and the marriage license of Abraham Lincoln. The Governor also possesses a book from Washington's library describing the projected city of Washington. In it is a prayer that was used by the Continental Army in 1775.

Much surprise is expressed that the Governor should part with so rare a collection, considered by many to be the finest private one in the country. Every volume was collected by the Governor himself, and he has devoted a great part of his life to the work.

The books are all at the Pennypacker residence, 1540 North Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia. When he decided to make his home at Schwenksville, Pa., the Governor concluded to dispose of the greater portion of his books.

BEST-SELLING BOOKS IN JUNE.

THE following books, according to The Bookman, sold best in order of demand during the month of June:

	POINTS.
1. Sandy. Rice. Century Co	160
2. The Garden of Allah. Hichens. Stokes	136
3. The Marriage of William Ashe. Ward. Harper	98
4. The Breath of the Gods. McCall. Little, Brown & Co	76
5. The Princess Passes. Williamson. Holt	75
6. Constance Trescot. Mitchell. Century Co	72

PERSONAL NOTES.

S. EDGAR BRIGGS, of the Fleming H. Revell Company, left last week to join Norman Duncan, author of "Doctor Luke of the Labrador," at Exploits, a village on the East coast of the land he has described so beautifully. Mr. Briggs and Mr. Duncan will make various side trips and be welcome guests in every fishing village where Mr. Duncan finds "his people."

B. W. HUEBSCH, 150 Nassau Street, New York City, whose diary, known as Huebsch's Year Book, is familiar to the book and stationery trade, is travelling in the middle West, taking orders for 1906 books. Travellers are showing the line in other sections of the country. A variety of vest-pocket sizes and some new desk styles bring the line up to twenty-nine numbers, for each one of which there will be an active demand.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE New York Times is to publish "The Breadwinners" as a serial in its Sunday issues. Though Secretary Hay never acknowledged himself the author of this book, he also never denied his responsibility for this political novel which made so powerful impression upon novel readers almost a quarter of a century ago.

McClure's Magazine printed a large extra edition of the July number in anticipation of the demand which, it was expected, Miss Tarbell's Rockefeller would create; but the public interest so far exceeded the circulation manager's calculations that in six days the entire edition was exhausted. With the August number occupying the presses, it was not possible to print more of July, and orders for 50,000 remained unfilled.

OBITUARY NOTES.

J. HERVEY COOK, barrister and historian, died at Ledgewood, N. J., on Saturday, July 22, at the age of seventy-two. He was prominent in educational matters. He resided in Fishkill Landing for many years and was an authority on Revolutionary facts. He was a classmate of William McKinley and Alton B. Parker.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE British Order of Merit has been accorded to George Meredith, R. C. Jebb, Holman Hunt and Alma-Tadema.

JOHN HAY is one of the prominent characters in "The Illini," Colonel Clark E. Carr's book on early Illinois, published by A. C. McClurg & Co.

MISS MABEL BOUSELL, Noblesville, Ind., is preparing an arithmetic for special use in the Philippine schools. She is doing the work for a New York firm, being especially fitted for it from her experiences as teacher in the Island schools.

HOBART CHATFIELD CHATFIELD-TAYLOR has had conferred upon him the order of St. James by the King of Portugal in recognition of an article upon the city of Lisbon contributed by this Chicago writer. This is the fourth foreign order with which Mr. Chatfield-Taylor has been honored. King Alfonso of Spain and the Presidents of France and Venezuela have already decorated him.

THE announcement of Miss Ethel Barrymore's engagement to Captain Harry Graham of the British Army, in the daily papers, generally omitted to add that the famous actress's fiancée is the poet who achieved literary fame under the pseudonym of "Col. D. Streamer," the pen name being derived from Captain Graham's regiment, the Coldstream Guards. His "Misrepresentative Men," published by Fox, Duffield & Co., is now in its fourth edition and they will shortly publish another volume, "More Misrepresentative Men," by the same author.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Clark Publishing Company has incorporated in Massachusetts; capital $20,000; par value, $5. The incorporators are Esther E. Jones, president; Dudley L. Clark, treasurer, Boston.

NEW YORK CITY.—Cedric Chivers has removed his office from 542 Fifth Avenue to 1242 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, where he has his workshops. He will confine his work wholly to the binding of books for public library use.

OTTUMWA, IA.—The Longfellow Book and Stationery Co. has succeeded to the business of the Longfellow Bookstore.

SEDRO-WOOLLEY, WASH.—F. E. Eldred has sold his bookstore to F. Benecke.

TIFFIN, O.—Lillian Stewart, of Gallipolis, has purchased a bookstore here.

WACO, TEX.—Ida De Shong has sold out her bookstore.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

J. WHITAKER & SONS, London, have in preparation a new edition of their "Reference Catalogue of Current Literature," with an index, which will be published next year.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a revised edition of William Swan Sonnenschein's "The Best Books," a guide to the choice of the best available books in every department of science, art, and literature, with the dates of the first and last editions, and the price, size, and publisher's name of each volume, with complete authors and subjects index. The work is a revised and rewritten edition of Mr. Sonnenschein's volumes, "The Best Books" and "A Reader's Guide."

WILLIAMS & NORGATE, 14 Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, London, have just brought out the first number of The Bibliographical Register, a prominent feature of which will be the publication of hitherto unprinted documents relating to bibliography and historical printing. In this first number is given the first portion of an important letter from Henry Bradshaw on printing in the Irish character. There are, besides, notes on recent bibliographic works, notes and queries, and collations and descriptions of early English books. The periodical for the present will be published quarterly at 2s. 2d. a year.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just brought out the second volume of Luther S. Livingston's monumental work, "Auction Prices of Books," reviewed in our issue for May 13, 1905. Nothing can be added to our estimate of the work excepting that as it progresses one is impressed with its magnitude and importance as a labor-saver to all who handle books whether as a bookseller, librarian or collector. To these the work is absolutely indispensable. The remaining two volumes are well under way and will be published shortly.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Antiquarian Book Concern, Americus, Ga., Old books and pamphlets relating to the Civil War, Revolutionary War, Indians, etc. (No. 1, 20 p. 8°.)—Joseph Baer & Co., 6 Hochstr, Frankfurt-a.-Main, Deutsche geschichte von 1600 bis zur gegenwart. LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ROBERT LUTZ, of Stuttgart, who recently published a German edition of an American book by Burton Stevenson, entitled "Holladay Case," has just bought the German rights of that author's new book, "Marathon Mystery." Both books are published here by Henry Holt & Co.

JAMES POTT & COMPANY will publish in the autumn "To-day on the Nile," by H. W. Dunning, who has recently returned from his sixth trip up the Nile. His book is not merely a narrative of personal experience, but aims to combine with it a sufficient account of Egyptian history to lead to an understanding of modern conditions in the country.

THE TRUTH SEEKER COMPANY, 62 Vesey Street, New York City, has just issued a translation by Frederic Mitchell of Edgar Monteil's "Freethinker's Catechism," and new editions of "Old Testament Stories Comically Illustrated" and "New Testament Stories Comically Illustrated," the pictures for both books being the work of Watson Heston, who recently died at Carthage, Mo.

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY, San Francisco, have in preparation "Womanhood in Art," by Phebe Estelle Spalding, a volume of essays dealing with women made famous in art, such as the Venus of Milo, Mona Lisa, the several celebrated Madonnas, etc., which will be sumptuously illustrated; and they have just issued "Impressions of Ukiyo-Ye," by Dora Amsdon; and are preparing a third edition of "Prosit: a Book of Toasts."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY are promised the manuscript of "The True Andrew Jackson," which Cyrus Townsend Brady is completing, by August 1, and it will no doubt be a notable addition to the True Biographies. They will also have ready shortly "Memoirs of General Early," edited by Senator John W. Daniel; and a new novel by Thomas McKean, entitled "The Vortex," in which the popular millionaire author goes to Italy for his scene and characters.

E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY have in preparation "The Romance of Savoy: Victor Amadeus II. and His Stuart Bride," by the Marchesa Vitelleschi, which is said to throw much light on the struggles for liberty carried on by the Duke of Savoy against Louis XIV.; and "Peter's Mother," a new novel by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, dealing with conflict of emotions in a still young widow's heart who hesitates between her love for her son and her love for another.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will bring out in the fall "Sir Raoul," a story of the thirteenth century, by Dr. James M. Ludlow, author of "The Captain of the Janizaries." The story deals with the capture of Constantinople. They have in press a small volume by G. Campbell Morgan, entitled "The Christ of To-day: What, Whence Whither?" presenting the modern evangelical view of the person and mission of Christ and of the true aims of the Christian church. That remarkable little devotional book, "Quiet Talks on Power," by S. D. Gordon, which has had such great success in England and America, is now being translated into Dutch.

BAKER & TAYLOR CO. announce for fall publication some unusually promising books. "When You Were a Boy," by Edwin L. Sabin, is composed of very happy sketches of boy life, of which the greater part have appeared in the Century; "Poet, Miss Kate and I," by Margaret P. Montague, is a story dealing with Western Virginia which is to be printed in two colors and have a cover showing the beautiful scene of the story; and a fourth edition of Miss Rowland's "Digressions of Polly" completes the preparations in fiction. Russell Sturgis will have ready the fourth volume in the Popular Art Series, but it is not yet named; and an authoritative and highly interesting work will be "Japanese Architecture and the Allied Arts," by Ralph Adams Cram, one of America's best known architects, who has spent much time in Japan making studies for his book.

D. APPLETON & CO. have firm faith in fiction, and have made preparations for a long list of novels for the fall. A partial list of some that are to appear immediately as as follows: "The Reckoning," by Robert W. Chambers; "The Yellow Journalist," by Miriam Michelson; "Baby Bullet," by Lloyd Osbourne; "The Flute of Pan," by John Oliver Hobbes; "The Carlyles," by Mrs. Burton Harrison; "The Hundred Days," by Max Pemberton; "He and Hecuba," by the Baroness von Hutten; "Time, the Comedian," by Kate Jordan; "Outside the Law," by James Barnes; "Reptiles," by H. W. McVickar; "Duke of Devil-May-Care," by Harris Dickson; "The Game and the Candle," by Frances Davidge; "Purple and Fine Linen," by Emily Post; "The Staircase of Surprise," by Frances A. Mathews; "Vivien," by W. B. Maxwell; "The Lake," by George Moore; "Twisted Eglantine," by H. B. Marriott Watson; "Patricia: a Mother," by "Iota;" "At the Emperor's Wish," by Oscar King Davis; and "The Giants," by Mrs. Fremont Older.

THOMPSON & THOMAS, Chicago, announce for the fall season "Tales of the Road," by Charles N. Crewdson, which contains stories of business life by a man who has been on the road for seventeen years and is counted among the brightest travellers; "An American in New York," a novel of to-day by Opie Read; "Merciful Unto Me, a Sinner," a Christian science novel by Elinor Dawson, in favor of the new doctrines; and "Peck's Bad Boy Abroad," by Hon. George W. Peck, who takes his promising son on a tour around the world. Among books outside of fiction there will be "How to Hustle," by J. P. Johnston, a man who hustled himself into marked success; the "Twentieth Century Home Cook Book," by Mrs. Frances Carruthers; "Daring Exploits of Scouts and Spies," by General Lafayette C. Baker; "Painting Pastimes," a combination painting and drawing book, by Edith O'Donnell; "Our Feathered Friends" and "Our Animal Friends in Their Native Homes," a natural history for young people, by Mrs. Phœbe Westcott Humphreys; "Toyland," a juvenile printed in many colors; and "A B C Fun," written in merry jingle and also illustrated in colors.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers; to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisments from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.
